ARCHBISHOP WALSH ON THE EXTREME COURSE OF HIS FELLOW PRELATES.

Prince Jerome Napoleon Dying-A Nice Point Decided-France and Germany-A Lion Tamer Mangled-The Canadian Elections-The Vatican and the Schools in America-Foreign News.

LONDON, March 9 .- A Dublin letter says that Archbishop Walsh does not approve of the extreme course taken by those of his fellow prelates who hold out excommunication as a penalty for the followers of Parnell. While holding positive views, both as to the folly and the evil effect upon the nation's political and moral interests of giving countenance to Parnell, the Archbishop does not propose to put under the ban either the ciergy or laymen among Parnell's supporters. This, however, is not the view generally held by the Irish prelates, and the indications are that ere long the Irish people will have to choose between Parnell and the church.

About two hundred Parnellites accompanied Redmond and Harrison on the tender, and presented the envoys with an address to which Redmond responded, berating the McCarthyltes for causing the disturbance. Caral Manning will preside at the McCarthyite quet to be held in London on St. Patrick's

THE CLERICAL OPPOSITION.

DUBLIN, March 9.—Sir Charles Gavan Duffy has written a letter to the Freeman's Journal, in which he says that the policy of independent opposition, which Mr. Parnell had so far to penal parishes for supporting the inde-pendent party. Eventually, he adds, the Independents became reduced by intrigue and corruption from fifty to five members, the bishops condoning or approving every act of treachery.

In conclusion Sir Charles Gavan Duffy dedissecting table.

The National Press, the new McCarthylte paper to day says that the upshot of the controversy over the Paris funds is that Par-nell, after denying the title of the Nationalists, acknowledges their authority and awaits the judgment. The same paper asserts that federation is welcome everywhere and becomes the heir of the defunct National ANTI-PARNELL MEETING.

DUBLIN, March 9.—Successful meetings were held by the anti-Parnell faction of the Irish party at Hilltown and Lisles yesterday. At the former place Messrs, McCarthy, Knox and Pinkerton, members of Parliament, made Pinkerton, members of Parliament, made speeches, and at the latter, Messrs. Timothy Healy and Deasy orated. At Dundalk the populace detached the horses and dragged Mr. Healy's carriage through the town and part of the way to Lislea. Mr. Parnell, on returning from Newry, through Dundalk, was groaned and hooted at by the people, the crowd becoming so violent that the police had to go to the rescue and escort Parnell to the railway station. Archbishop Croke has the railway station. Archbishop Croke has sent to the National Press, the new McCarthyite paper, a letter in which he strongly op-poses the retention of Mr. Parnell as leader Seets managed to except he remaining the lions and than aged to cage the remaining five ilons, and then turned his attention to the re-bellious animal, which had angrily taken refuge in a neighboring passage. Seets armed himself with a lance and tried to dislodge the refractory ilon, but in so doing he tripped and lost hold of his lance, the weapon rolling several yards away from him. Before he could regain possession of the spear the ilon sprang upon the unfortunate man, hurled him to the floor and bit and rent him to a most horrible manner. The latter caught up the lance and gallantly attacked the lion, inflicting a severe would with the weapon in the animal's forehead. Cowed by the wound received, the lion released poor Seets and slunk into its cage. Medical assistance was promptly sent for and everything possible was done to save the lion-tamer's life, but the latest reports are that he is in a critical condition.

THE LAWS AGAINST GAMBLING.

PARIS, March 9.—The police stationed at Anteuli to preserve order and enforce the laws against gambling during the race week are murmuring against being compelled to coerce people who are entirely inoffensive. A reconsideration of the matter will be had, and the Chamber of Deputies will repeat its former action and vote to permit betting without Government restriction.

LONDON, March 9.—A singular contest has just been terminated before the Judicial Committee of the Royal Privy Council. Cer tain Mohammedans worshiping in a mosque at the Tatoore, India, claimed that the at the Tatoore, India, claimed that the leader and cryer in prayers were derelicts because they uttered "Amen" aloud and raised their hands to their ears at a certain point in the prayers. The aggrieved worshipers wished to have the alleged heretics expelled from their offices. The case was carried from court to court in india, at great expense, and finally to the Privy Council in England. The Privy Conneil decided, after exhaustive inquiry, that the acts alleged are heresy. It is considered a singular spectacle that Christains in council should decide nice points of Mohammedanism.

Count Von Munster's supposition is believed to be greatly true. In addition, the German embassy officials continue to criticise President Carnot's action in not calling upon the Empress Frederick when she was in Paris and it is said that hereafter all arrangements will be made beforehand should any member of the Imperial family of Germany visit the French capital.

BELGRADE, March 9 .- Ex-King Milan is hypocritical in pretending not to know the facts of the execution of Helen Markovies and another woman, who attempted to kill him several years ago. It was by Milan's own order that the women were strangled to death in prison, the fact of the execution being afterward reported to the King, who said that if they were men he would have had them broken on the wheel, a penalty inflicted in Servia under Milan's reign.

THE P. M. B. A. MEN DEMAND THAT THE REPUBLICANS VOTE.

Treasurer Huston Played a Game of Bluff With the President and Lost-Farmers' Alliance Men Repudiating Debts-The California Senatorship-Watterson and

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 9 .- The senatoris question presents every phase of one that is completely settled. Not more than a score of members were in the city yesterday. Mr. Streeter visited his home, New Windsor, and Gen. Palmer spent the day quietly. All parties acknowledged that there will be an election this week. The talkers in the el lobbies display a very wide diversity of opinion as to the outcome of the ballot on Tuesday. The Republicans still claim that the five recalcitrants will return to the city and vote under the party whip, and that, necessarily, Streeter will be elected United States Sepator before the close of the day. On the other hand, the Democrats claim that the five will return to Springfield unreconciled to Streeter, and that John M. Palmer will be to Streeter, and that John M. Palmer will be elected to the Senate Tuesday. This claim is based on the very tangible theory that Messrs. Moore and Cockrell are disgusted with their political associates and will vote for Gen. Palmer. There is one point on which all parties agree. That is that there will be a Senator elected on Tuesday. Many other circumstances, having added to them the reterated assertions of the F. M. B. A. members, give strength to this conviction. They assert that the Republicans must deliver to Streeter on Tuesday the full vote of the party, or steps will be taken to end the contest. This means, if anything, that they intend to vote for Gen. Palmer if the Republicans continue to reject Streeter. For some days both Dr. Moore and Mr. Cockrell have been disgusted with the modes of the Republicans, and have at times expressed themselves very freely. Mr. Cockrell says he believes that it was never the intention of the Republicans to elect Mr. Streeter, and that he sees little probability of the election taking place, as the disaffection of one member would preclude the possibility of such a thing.

"Senator Evans has informed me positive-ly," said Mr. Cockrell, "that he will never vote for our man under any circumstances. vote for our man under any circumstances. This opinion was expressed after the Friday adjournment. I will say, however, that if this contest is not ended at once by the election of Mr. Streeter I will see that some one else is elected. The people of the State are extremely tired of this contest, and as we have done everything imaginable to get Republican support I have come to the conclusion that there is little use of waiting longer. Gen. Palmer, while he has never been our choice, is nevertheless homest in his convictions, and we always know where he stands on a question without asking him."

There were twenty-six members present at the session of the Joint Assembly to-day, fit-teen of whom voted for Palmer, nine for Streetor and one for Oglesby, on the 152d ballot. The pressure is still on for an election this week, but there are reports of sickness from different quarters, and this may inter-fere with a full vote to-morrow. A strong effort is being made to have everybody

NEW YORK, March 9.—The Tribune publishes a Louisville letter signed "E. L.," giving a report of a conversation with Henry Watterson. After the resources of the South, journalism and other subjects had been discussed, the interviewer touched upon the famous letter to Gov. Hill. Mr. Watterson replied:

"I was amazed at Hill's irritation. If that letter was impertinent I had written one a year before to Mr. Cleveland that was far more impertinent, only instead of Mr. Cleveland taking it as Mr. Hill did, he replied in a spirit of cordiality in acquiescence. I have not spoken of that since, partly from sentiment. But I should have no hesitation in publishing it if Mr. Cleveland would permit it. It's true that Mr. Cleveland asked my advice, and Gov. Hill didn't."

"There is an impression," I said, "that in writing to Gov. Hill you were approaching a on. After the resources of the South, jour

But the first time I met him he poured out his griefs into my ear for three hours. He told me all about his Cleveland troubles, and in his differences with Mr. Cleveland I think Mr. Cleveland is largely in the wrong. In fact, I told Mr. Cleveland as much. But there was nothing in my letter that ninety-nine good Democrats out of a hundred wouldn't say if Mr. Hill asked them. If he had gone to Mr. Cleveland and said: 'Here, Mr. Cleveland and said: 'Here, Mr. Cleveland, there is an imputation that I sold you out in 1888, it isn't true, but I am going to elect you,' and if he had then taken hold or nominated and managed the canvass and elected Cleveland, nothing in the world could have kept Hill down in 1896. The whole country would have gone for him with tremendous enthusiasm. As it is, he will go into the Senate and be lost. He is nothing but a good organizer, anyhow. Of course he is a bright, level-headed man, but he's not an orator or debator. There are plenty of men in the Senate who will overmatch him-Morgan, Gray, Voorbees, Reagan. George, Butler. He will lose control of the machine, and that will be the end of him.'

Treasurer Huston's Resignation.

Louisville, Ky., March 9.—A Washington special to the Courier-Journal says: It now appears that Treasurer Huston, although not exactly kicked out of office got out unwillingly and unexpectedly. He had gone to see the President to have a growl and to talk resignation, expecting fully that he would be smoothed down and be begged to remain and help hold up the financial credit of the United States. The President, however, was a little more dyspeptic than usual himself. The Maryland biscuit he had consumed at breakfast did not set well on him, and when Huston began with his usual talk of desiring to re-resign the President said: "Well, Mr, Huston, I will accept your resignation; please present it."

Headquarters for the Independent Movement Secured To-Day.

FROM NOW ON AN AGGRESSIVE CAM-PAIGN WILL BE CONDUCTED.

What the Politicians Think About the Attempt to Elect Men Not Bound by Party Ties-Republican City Committee Meeting To-Night-Why Mr. Maffitt is Inactive-Notes.

The Independent movement has crystallized within the last two days, and with the com-mendation of 500 citizens its candidates have been formally presented to the people. The signed and attested petition has been filed with the Recorder of Voters, and the names will be on the ballot which will be voted on April 7. The headquarters of the Independin room 29, Turner Building, and active were sent out this morning with blank Eleven hundred names have already been secured, but that is only a small part of the number who will sign, and it is the intention of the managers to secure a list of signatures which will open the eyes of the politicians and make them see the full force and size of the Independent movement. The complaints which professional partisans are making against the movement signify that they had not rightly calculated its strength and were meeting it with old stock arguments.
"Why didn't you wait to see what sort of men the parties would put up?" they complainingly ask and with a smile the Indepen-plainingly ask and with a smile the Independent replies:

"Because we did not propose to give you the chance you coveted to call us soreheads and bolters. The Independents saw the need for a change in the management of Municipal affairs and that change could be effected only by general popular action unhampered by the dictation of the party machine."

It is amusing, even in the growing heat of the campaigm, to stop to listen to the palayer. the campaign, to stop to listen to the palaver of the politicians, who have been decidedly rattled by the developments of the last few days.

One Democratic worker, the creature of a notoriously corrupt politician, who was defeated for office in the last election, expressed quite freely the opinion that the Independent movement could not win.

'Why not?'' he was asked, "Because, the men who are behind it will not vote for it," he replied. "What makes you think that?"

"Why, you won't get the vote of more than 10 per cent of the signers to your petitions."
"Give your reasons."
"Well, some of them will not vote and most of those who do will vote the party

WHERE THE BREWERS STAND.

Mr. Phillip Stock, the Secretary of the English brewery syndicate, is credited in a Saturday paper with having said it was not true that Mr. Busch and Mr. Steifle and the prominent brewer's would sign the petition. "I cannot speak officially," he was alleged to have said, "but I know it is not true, because they could not afford to support any such movement."

he saw the printed list of subscribers he would have restrained his party feeling and refrained from such a statement, as the names of Mr. Busch and Mr. Stiefle appear in the list. But he is not the only one who the list. But he is not the only one whose calculations were disturbed by that list. The Republicans find on looking over it that many men on whom they relied for support have declared for the Independent movement, and they are comforting themselves with the belief that the gentlemen who signed that petition will not consider themselves committed to the Independent themselves committed to the Independent movement, but those names alone are sufficient proof that these men who have endorsed this movement voluntarily and publicly mean it when they write their names. The Republicans, however, in face of the meagre consolation they are offering themselves, have about decided to place on their ticket the three Kepublicans who are on the Independent ticket and unless they change their minds that will be done. In that event Independent ticket and unless they change their minds that will be done. In that event the Democrats will nominate the three of that party who are on the Independent ticket and that will mean assured success for the Municipal ticket. The Independents would be well pleased with such a course. They do not care whether their candidates are indorsed by the parties or not. They have selected six honest men to attend to the city's business affairs, and if the political parties wish to help elect them it will be first time in many years that they have assisted honest men to office on the sole platform of honest government.

CITY HALL METHODS.

It seems that further revelations concerning the methods which prevail at the City Hall will be necessary, for the politicians and office-holders are still asking the question, "What is the need for the Independent property." The proporties of the property of the property of the property of the property of the property. movement?" The promoters of the movement reply to this that the need has been pointed out from time to time in various revelations of outrageous boodle transactions. In addition to that the Post-Disparch told the story yesterday of how the street cold to the story yes terday of how the street car legislation was passed. The boodlers fixed their price at terday of how the street car legislation was passed. The boodlers fixed their price at $30,000 per road, and a certain director went to the boards of directors of the various lines and submitted the proposition to them. After a revolt by one line and some time spent in negotiating, the money was paid and the franchises were granted. And it is of such transactions as this that a member of the House of Delegates, when told that franchises were bought, replied, "What if they are? You don't hear the street car magnates complaining. They are not kicking. A man is put in the Assembly and he is expected to take care of himself. If he don't do it when the opportunity occurs, he is called an idiot."

There is one species of boodling in the House of Delegates which is so brazen that it would seem too ridiculous if it was not so serious a matter to laugh at. The chairman of a certain committee is the head of the boodle organization, and on several occasions when bills had been paid for members who had received their share were not on hand to vote. The result of that was the adoption of a rule that if anyone who had been in on the divide did not attend to vote when he was notified that the measure was to come up for passage he was to be fined and the fine was to be taken out of the next bribe received.

Two such fines have been already assessed

g them.
These are the methods against which the dependent movement is directed, and ese are the methods which have been instited and fostered by the machines and the en of their making.

THE NECESSITIES OF THE TIME.
The following communication tells very ainly what necessities the citizens see for movement. We of the people can readily enough answer that question. We do not know what may have been the purpose in the minds of the leaders who have undertaken it, nor do we care. see plainly enough why we of the people should want it. We exert our influence only when we cast our single vote. But we are tired of going through this operation as a mechanical process, without seeing the results of it, or what good it may do.

There is a monotony in this operation of casting a vote at every election and feeling that it does not count. We, as the masses, object to being reckoned upon in this way, added up by figures in advance, because it is assumed as known that we shall vote in a particular way. We have been treated in this way long enough, and do not propose to continue in the same old way as figureheads. We demand the opportunity of speaking and seeing the results of our ballot. We have tickets made out for us in advance, are supposed to march up in file and deposit our vote, just because the names have at the head the title of a certain party. We understand perfectly well that we are practically powerless at the ward meetings. We have not the time to mrster that machinery. We know perfectly well that if we go there everthing will be cut and dried, then if we cannot exert an influence in that way, if we count for nothing under those circumstances, we propose to have an opportunity to express our voice at the polls. polls we propose to take our places and have the opportunity of acting like men.

We of the people see plainly enough that we do not get represented by this system of machine politics. Our voices are not heard, and our interests not honestly cared for. What we care for is that the interests of the masses, the thousands and hundreds of thousands, come first into consideration. We want clean streets and good sewerage. It is want clean streets and good sewerage. It is plain enough that we pay the taxes, we carry the burdens. We ask then for the returns. We want to see this money well spent, and spent in our interests as a people.

Have we not the right of putting men in office? Can we, the masses, not have a word to say about it? Cannot we choose; must we obey like a flock of sheen?

obey like a flock of sheep?

Let the people for once have a voice; give us a chance to have our say and show our induence. We can prove that we care more for men than we do for a clan. We are tired of men than we do for a clair. We are tried of being ruled from we know not where. We have cried hurrah long enough to the will and wish of the ward committee. The boss poli-tician has had his say, now we would like to have it ourselves. We of the people are hon-est as a people and we know what we want.

Why Mr. Maffitt Is Inactive

Chairman C. C. Mamtt of Democratic Convention little part in the campaign, according to all reports. His in-activity has caused some surprise and dis-cussion and led up to the report that he had a falling out with the Noonan leaders over the selection of material for the Coun-cil ticket. Speaking on this subject to-day Mr. Maffitt said: "The report is cil ticket. Speaking on this subject today Mr. Maffitt said: "The report is entirely unfounded. I have not figured in political matters for the principal reason that I have been too busy with pressing business engagements. I did try to get a number of strong Democrats to allow the use of their names for Council nominations but they flatly refused. Among others I saw Wayman McCreery, Rolla Wells, Valle Reyburn and Maj. Caruth, but they all refused to run. I then got tired of seeking candidates and have been in a quiescent state so far as politics are concerned ever since."

EAST ST. LOUIS AND BELLEVILLE.

Meeting to Nominate Candidates for Al-

The anti-administration party of East St.
Louis will hold another meeting to nominate candidates for Alderman in each ward. When they nominated candidates for municipal offices Saturday night they found it advisible to defer the selection of Aldermanic nominees. Judge Canby's acceptance of the nomination for Mayor inspires the party with confidence in the success of the whole ticket. The others on the ticket are men of high standing. John Enright is the present Assessor, Thomas Burke is a well-known business man, John Suess is principal of the Island School and a promising young man, while D. G. Ramsay is one of the loyal 101 who stick to Gen. Palmer at Springfield. They are all in favor of a continuation of the public improvements in progress. Since the nomination of these men for the high offices the announcement of the names of aldermanic candidates is awaited with interest, and a great deal depends upon the action of the party at the next meeting, which will probably be held this week.

A two-story frame building belonging to F. B. Bowman, that stood on Collinsville avenue near Broadway, is being moved to a lot on Baugh avenue, in Illinois City. A large brick business building will be erected in its place. E. R. Davis is moving his residence from Third street to St. Louis avenue, and will build in its stead a two-story brick building Strafeet in dimensions.

The funeral of Mrs. Hauss, wife of Charles Hauss, Jr., took place this afternoon at St. Henry's Cemetery. Mrs. Hauss was a daughter of Alderman Henry Sackman of the First Ward.

Treasurer Martell will turn over his tax books to the County Treasurer to-morrow, after which East St. Louisans who have not paid their assessments will have to go to Belleville to liquidate.

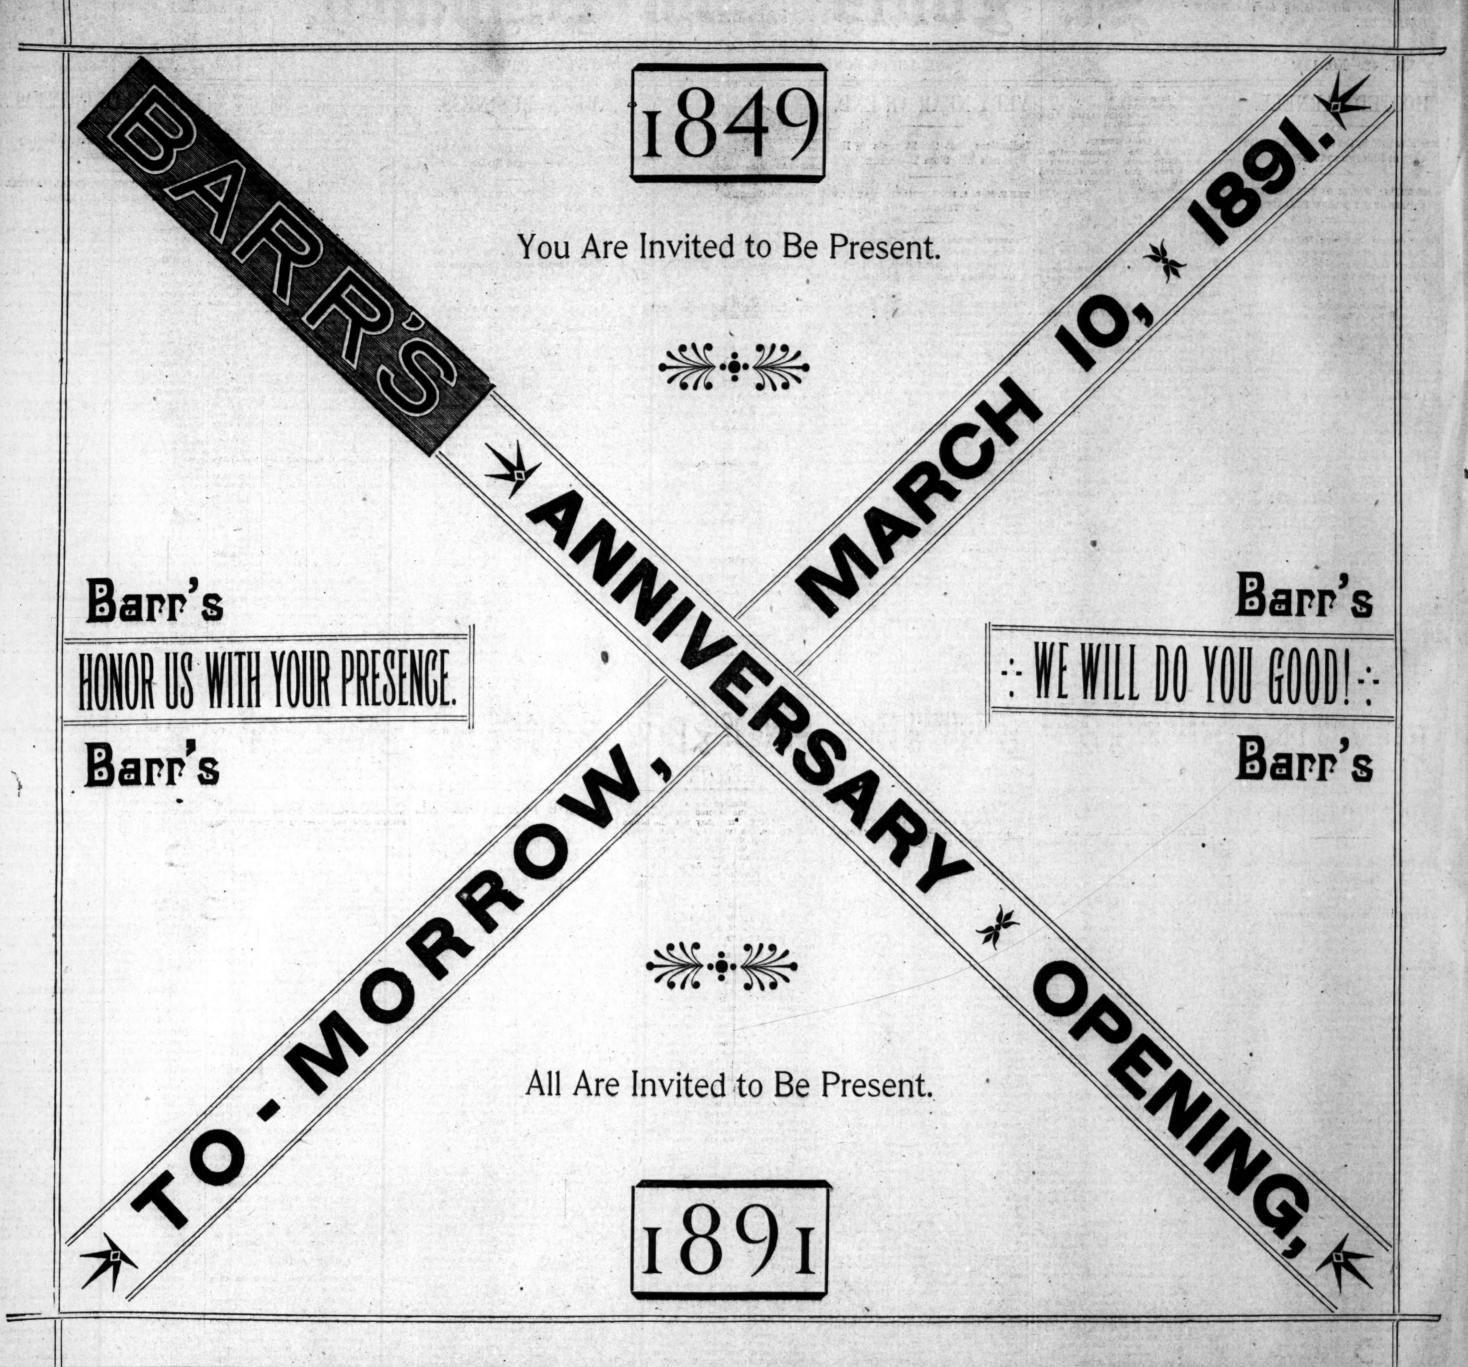

Peter Fruit and John Mullen have been appointed police patrolimen by the Mayor. They it is in New Brighton and have been assigned to duty in that district.

An infant child af Fiorence Doyle of Sixth street died last night, and was buried this afternoon at St. Henry's Cemetery. The anti-administration party of East St.

Rev. George F. Seymour of the Springfield Episcopal Diocese preached a short sermon last night at St. George's Church. He left on a late train for Alton to attend the funeral of an Episcopal divine who died there last week. Hon. H. G. Weber has announced himself as a candidate for Mayor. He is the fifth man to enter the race. There will probably be other candidates before the campaign closes. The young ladies composing St. Luke's Church Sodality have begun arrangements for an entertainment to be given Easter Monday in the school hall.

GRAND-JURY WORK.

BIG BATCH OF INDICTMENTS RETURNED TO THE CRIMINAL COURT.

Thirty-Nine Indictments Found and Three Bills Ignored-Luke O'Reilly Indicted for Murder in the Second Degree-Other Cases Investigated by the Grand-Jury.

A partial report was made in the Criminal Court by the March Grand-jury at about 11 o'clock this morning. The March inquisition has been in progress since last Monday, and an unusual amount of work has been done. A total of thirty-nine true bills have been returned, although a number of cases had to be continued and the work of the session materially delayed on account of the absence of important witnesses. Three actions were ignored.

An indictment for murder in the second degree was returned against Luke O'Reilly. On Nov. 22 last O'Reilly shot and fatally wounded John J. Schmidt. The deceased was a respectable young man living at 600 East Davis street, Carondelet. O'Reilly had been on a hunting trip in Illimois and crossed the river at the Carondelet ferry. Meeting an acquaintance he went to Jos. Schmidt's place and obtained a bucket of beer. He told Schmidt he had no money, and when the saloon-keeper objected to giving him credit on the ground that he was a stranger, became enraged and drew a revolver. He had just levelled the weapon at the proprietor, when the son sprang forward and received a ball in the abdomen. He lived until Nov. 29. A mob obtained a rope and tried to hang O'Reilly at the time of the shooting and might have been successful in the effort had not officer Thornton of the First District put in a timely appearance. As it was O'Reilly was badly beaten about the head and body. The defendant claims that young Schmidt and a companion assaulted him. O'Reilly's record is against him.

and a companion assaulted him. O'Reilly's record is against him.

OTHER INDICTMENTS.

True bills for fraud were returned against Williams Waters, two; Theo. Vincent, William Schultz, three; Thomas Erven, Conrad Blerman, three. Robert Alexander was indicted for criminal assault and Arthur King for attempted criminal assault.

Indictments for robbery in the first degree were found against Thomas Carr and Thomas Goldman, and for attempted robbery in the first degree were found against Charles Buskin and Asa Adams.

Indictments for burglary in the first degree and larceny were returned against Noah S. Anderson and Louis McKenzie, William Robinson, four; William Robinson and Joseph Ridley, Wm. Robinson and Tobe Weatherspoon. Robinson, Ridley and Weatherspoon form the trio of burglars who operated with great success in the West End Christmas week. Weatherspoon was caught at Covington, Ky.

True bills for burglary in the second degree and larceny were found against Martin Welsh and John Gleason, Geo. King, Geo. Hughes, Wm. Crowell, Eugene Black (two), Noah Adderson and Louis McKenzie.

True bills for grand larceny were seturned against Charles Smith, Hugh McKay, Clara Morgan, Timothy Bresnahan and Henry Niehaus, Henry Bailey and Sis Balley.

Lizsie Fisher was indicted for receiving stolen property, while Robert Shaw, George Stephenson and Andrew Wright were held to answer for assault with intent to kill.

answer for assault with intent to kill.

IONORED BILLS.

The actions against Max Mabrey, alias Crawford, for fraud, Charles Brown and John Knowes for grand larceny, and L. D. Alexander for fraud, were ignored. Mabrey was charged with defrauding Louis Wassem out of 75 cents by representing that he would put him in the United States Secret Service Department. Brown and Knowes were alleged to have stolen 88 from the cash drawer of Adam Hoffman's saloon on South Broadway, Alexander, a negro, was alleged to have represented to one Sallie Johnson that he was a practicing attorney and engaged to represent her in an action for stander, which she wishes to commence in the Circuit Court. The woman claimed to have paid Alexander $20 on the strength of this statement.

The Grand-jury is still in session and will hardly finish the work on its dockets in less than three weeks. An arraignment of the jail prisoners to-day indicted will be held in the Criminal Court late this afternoon.

the trial of F. W. Millington and his wife for the murder of Wm. H. Avery, has been quite damaging. The prosecution is very strong and is being conducted by the District Attorney, C. H. Stevens, J. E. Garrigus, J. A. Ballard of Fort Collins and L. L. Mills of Chicago. On the side of the defense are T. W. Fatterson, C. S. Thomas and Henry Lee.

Mrs. Millington was the wife of the dead man, and it is charged he was gotten out of the way that she might marry the co-defendant. The guilty attachment between them has been most conclusively proven, and also their secret marriage in F braska shortly after Avery's death. The theory of the defense, as shown in the crossexamination of the witnesses for the prosecution, is suicide. They are not making much of a fight to save the reputations of Millington and wife, and therefore offered slight opposition to the proof of the guilty attachment. In their theory Avery's knowledge of the relations between Millington and Mrs. Avery caused him to kill himself.

The body of Avery has been exhumed three times for the purposes of the prosecution, and the defense has claimed that it would be raised again for their purposes.

Suicide of a Supposed Insane Man—The Son of a Swedish Nobleman.

He had torn or burned up everything in the way of writing in his pos-session and he has yet not been identified. He had a silver hunting case watch, two plain gold rings, $48.50 in money, a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles and on the large of his vest was pinned a small Masonic badge.

SPRINGFIELD, O., March 9 .- Michael Mc Fadden of Woodstock was released from the penitentiary a few days ago, and Saturday instituted suit against David Henley. wealthy resident of Rush Township, to re-cover $1,340. In his petition McFadden claims that when he was sent to the penitentiary in 1888, for larceny, it was on an agreement 1888, for larceny, it was on an agreement with Henley that if he would file a plea of guilty he would be paid for the time in the penitentiary. This McFadden did and was in the penitentiary about two years. By the plea of guilty on the part of McFadden it is claimed that Henley's son was kept out of the penitentiary. Since McFadden's release Henley has refused to keep his part of the agreement and the suit is now brought to recover the amount.

THERE will be a big time in 1893, and St Louis will be "in it." THE Independent Council ticket stands

British public into an unusually sever spasm of virtuous indignation. THE Independent citizens' movement is fight of the people against the bosses and boodlers for the control of the city.

THE indications in yesterday's dispatche that Dr. Moone's constituents are bringing him to his senses afford a pleasing promise that the disreputable Streeter combination will not succeed.

THE strongest argument which could be advanced in favor of the election of the Independent municipal ticket is the story of that fund of $210,000 for the purchase of street vallway franchises.

THE appouncement that the Dominion Government will at once open negotiations with the United States Government for a reciprocity treaty proves that the struggle of the Canadian Liberals, although it did not win a Parliamentary majority, resulted in a moral victory. It frightened the Tories into an adoption of their policy in a modified form.

In the choice between two evils in the matter of appointing the new Supreme Court Circuit Judges it is generally re garded as a certainty that the President will choose the one more desirable from the standpoint of himself and his party; that is he will assume the responsibility of naming and putting them to work without the consent of the Senate, the obtaining of which would require an extra session.

stubborn stand on $45,000. California's appropriation of $300,000 is explained by the fact that she has more unoccupied land than any other State in the Union, xcept Texas, and by the further fact that same millionaires and corporations that own the aforesald unoccupied land in tracts larger than some of the minor kingdoms of Europe, own the California Legislature also.

WHOLESALE BRIBERY.

The March Grand-jury is now in sess and there is but one thing to prevent it from obtaining proofs of the revelations nade in the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCHproofs that several street railway companies had to "chip in" a corruption fund of $210,000 to get the recently enacted street railway ordinances through the Municipal Assembly.

The one obstacle to the production of the proof is the law which punishes alike the bribe-taker and the bribe-giver. Neither can be forced to testify against the other, oscause he can refuse to answer questions when the answer would incriminate himself. The Prosecuting Attorney may find it necessary to postpone a Grand-jury investigation till he can induce some one or more of the guilty to "turn State's evidence" on the customary conditions. before he can obtain the technical proofs ecessary to send others of the guilty to the penitentiary.

In the meantime, however, there is reason to believe that the Grand-jury need only begin the investigation to find abundant evidence of wholesale bribery. Directors who voted against the expenditure of money for "blind pool" purposes can specify the amounts so used without convicting themselves. It is probable that the bribes were paid to third parties-outside trustees-and that some of the agents car give testimony tracing the money very close to the indictable parties without testifying to any criminal act. Some of the sharers in the bribe fund may thus find that they have been swindled, and render some valuable assistance in ferreting the whole thing out.

But the situation is such as to morally convince the whole community that it can expect nothing but corruption from Municipal Assembly which is the product of either or both party machines, and that some better safeguard than the easily evaded penalties of the criminal law mus be relied on to stop such corruption. The same party bosses who get up the Municipal Assembly slates and put "boodle" measres through for stipulated amounts, giving only enough to their tools to make eriminal slaves of them, have a good deal to do with the practical administration of the criminal law, the making of bail bonds and so forth. The only thing to do is to elect a Council independent of the bosses and machines, and now is the time to do it.

In sizing up the amount Missouri should ontribute to Chicago's alleged "World's Fair," the Legislature should give due consideration to the fact that the 'World's' share in the Fair promises to be limited to Western Hemisphere exhibits. The recent World's Fair in Paris rather exhausted the Old World's passion for contributing to such shows. The German Emperor, whose Government excludes American provisions and breadstuffs in retaliation for our high tariff against German products, has referred to the various boards of trade in his empire the question whether it will pay to have any German exhibit at Chicago or not. France, the great exhibiting country, is considering measures of retaliation for our tariff, and talking about the absurdity of showing goods at great expense in distant markets closed against them by law. M. TIMARD, the Director-General of the Paris Exposition, says that French manufacturers decline for that reason to exhibit at the coming Russian Pair, and they are not likely to send costly exhibits to a still more remote |Fair held behind the walls of a still more objectionable tariff.

THE Enights of Plutocracy in New York City held a special meeting to indorse REED, LODGE and McKINLEY and all they have done or tried to do. Grand Master Workman DEPEW officiated as orator and master of cere monies, and the thanks and blessing of the Money Power were showered on all who were condemned by the people at the November election. The dominant idea of the meeting was that the aforesaid November election was a great outrage, and that the policy of having a force bill to prevent the people from vetoing plutocratic measures has been fully demonstrated.

EX-LABOR COMMISSIONER MERIWETH RR's domestic affairs have nothing to do with the attitude of the State Administration with regard to legislation for the protection of corporation employes in their rights. The attempt to use the former as a means of diverting attention from the latter is a manifest effort to throw dust in the eyes of the people of the State. It is the conduct of the Governor with reference to the investigation of corporation outrages and the adoption of legislation to prevent them and not the conduct of MER-IWETHER towards his wife which con-

THE proposition to give $647,000 of Missouri's money as a permanent endowment to the State University should stand or fall on its own merits. The assertion that the State can give the money to the University and still extinguish that much of the State debt with it savors of an attempt to obtain the gift under false pretenses. The prop-used in redeeming State bonds is simply a proposition to give away $647,000 and borrow it again in a way that will convert redeemable bonds into an irredeemable one of those incidents of power whose wisdebt and make that much of the State debt perpetual. It means a perpetual annual appropriation of the interest on $647,000 to the State University, to be paid by the present and future generations of taxpayers, whether they consider the institution worth the money or not. If that is a good thing to do, the reasons for doing it should be strong enough to prevail without any deceptive gloss.

A Ghastly Parody on Thanks.

From the Boston Herald.

If the Speaker is to be thanked for anything by his political opponents it is for his impar-tiality. Mr. Reed has not even attempted to be impartial. He went into the Speaker's chair with the set purpose of not being im-partial. He used that office solely as the enine of party. Ha was not even formally an arbiter between parties, as all other Speaker, had been before him. He took the Speaker ship practically with the motto: "Go

Several persons who were passengers on the Jacksonville Southeastern train which was wrecked a short distance north of Havana, Ill., shortly before 3 o'clock Sunday morning, arrived in the city to-day. They tell the story of a most horrible experience. The wrecked train was known as the "Red Express," and left Chicago at 7:40 Saturday evening and at the time of the accident was unning at the rate of thirty-five miles an our. A mile and a half north of Havana a train, engine, baggage car, express car, smoking car and three coaches, all rolled down the embankment of about ten feet. down the embankment of about ten feet. The speed at which the train was going threw the cars in the rear partially upon the engine, baggage car and gleeper. Fireman James W. Saddler, of Jacksonville was buried beneath the engine, and he was cremated in full view of those present, who were powerless to extricate him from his perilous position. The loss to the road on account of the accident is great, the wrecked train being one of the cars were new, of costly make, and officers of the company place the loss at $75,000. The wounded are in the City Hospital at Jacksonville, Ill., which city is the headquarters of the railroad company.

THE ELEMENTS WERE THREATENING. Mr. George B. Stephens, who resides in Chi-ago, was the Pullman conductor on the rain. He was seen at the Union Depot this norming and told the story of the terrible morning and told the story of the terrible wreck.

"We pulled out of Chicago," said he, "upon a slippery track and with a good load on. A drizzling rain was falling, and was forming into ice as it fell. We passed Pekin at about 1:30, going out only a short way behind two heavy freight trains. It was not thought that any danger existed, as long as a rear-end collision with the freights was gaarded against. The slippery tracks kept the engine puffing nearly all the time. My passengers were asking more questions than is usually the case. The weather, it seems, had made everybody nervous. Engineer Birkenhead had succeeded in working up a speed of about thirty-five miles, and the train, which always did run well, was getting along very well. There was scarcely any rattle, and I could hear some one talking in an ordinary tone of voice from one end to the other of the car. I was sitting on the ing in an ordinary tone of voice from one and to the other of the car. I was sitting on the coal box nodding, and was just contriving to imagine some way to pass away the time at 2:30 Sunday morning. I got up and started after a novel I had in my overcoat.

"Just as I started across the car it gave a powerful lunge forward, and I knew immediately that something had happened. There was a creaking, scraping sound, followed by a loud crash. At the same time the Pullman car I was in seemed to have been lifted from the track, and I and the passengers were all foreiby sent on a run for the right hand corner facing the engine. There was no time to be lost and the passengers and myself crawled out the THE TERRIBLE CRASH COMES. he passengers and myself crawled out the best way possible. The people were frightened and cold, and from the front end of the train we could hear groans and cries for help. The escaping steam sizzed and whirred. I was dressed and ran up to the frong, where there was apparently trouble. Coming near I could see Effigueer Birkenhead; pinfoned beneat some timbers in the cab, with flame from the engine's fire growing nearer and nearer every minute. For a moment strong

The remains of Miss Ellen Wood, bound from Chicago to Jacksonville, were in the baggage car, and while they were burning her father and sister stood and witnessed the incineration. It was a most pitiful sight. Anything would have been done to have saved the beloved remains, but it was impossible. The car was already completely enveloped in flames. It was heart-touching to see the search for bones after the fire. They were gathered up by the grief stricken relatives and taken to Jacksonville. This was one of the saddest scenes of the whole occurrence, and it brought tears to many eyes.

"The people in the smoker were in a dan erous place. Their cries could be hear bove the roar of the fire. Some of the above the roar of the fire. Some of them were pinioned in their positions and unable to move. Express Messenger Bates of Jacksonville had been rescued before I arrived on the scene. It took hard work, but we saved all the people in the smoker, nearly every one of whom was injured more or less. There was no way to check the fire, and aided by a fresh breeze it burned steadily along the line of cars. The cause of the fire was the baggage and express cars piling upon the engine. The whole train was slowly consumed, but not before the great majority had had time to dress. But the weather was any had time to dress. But the weather was any-thing but pleasant with a full supply of clothing. The scenes around the wreck were exciting in the extreme. Women were searching for their husbands, and husbands were searching for their wives, and brothers after sisters and sisters after brothers. They would most generally find them mangled and bleeding. There was only a small number of the passengers who escaped without in-jury."

THE FINANCIAL STATUS

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET WEAK WITH A DECLINING TENDENCY.

Granger Stocks and the Coal Line

Show Signs of Weskness-Influence South American Securities on the later-Condition of the Banks. NEW YORK, March 9.-The financial situa New York, March 9,—The mancial struc-tion in this city is by no means encouraging, and the market while duil, manifests many feverish symptoms that may lead to a sharp decline. The weakness that has character-ized the granger stocks, especially the Illi-nois Central, during the past few days is not supposed to be due so much to the prospects of those roads as to the condition of the money and stock market in this city. While the freights on the Western roads have not been up to the average in amount, rates have been better maintained than usual, and earn-ings have been fairly satisfactory.

This condition of affairs, taken in connection with the fact that the Villards have strong backing, would under ordinary circumstances maintain the stocks at their usual prices, but as matters now stand they are on the down grade. One cause for this is the weakness in the coal roads. The stock s the weakness in the coal roads. The stock is the weakness in the coal result. The of anthracite in the distributing centers is largely in excess of the demand, and it is acknowleded that there will have to be a dimination in production and transportation in order to allow the stock now on hand to be used up. was also more unfavorable than had been anticipated, although it was known that it would not be good, and this had a depressing effect on trading. The principal cause for the present weakness is, however, to be found in the sharp decline in South American securities. New York bankers are now more deeply interested in those stocks and bonds than they have ever been before.

SOUTS AMMRICAN STOCKS.

When the troubles in the English market that led to the suspension of the Barings began, there were no South American bonds to any considerable amounts held in this city. Although frequently approached, the large banking houses had steadily refused to invest, and therefore were not directly injured by the collapse. The troubles in financial circles in this country arose from the fact that English holders of South Americans were compelled to realize on their American securities, thus flooding the market. At present the situation is different. Many New York and Boston firms, notably Drexel, Morgan & Co., bought large amounts of South Americans on the down turn, believing that they would be certain to revive when the panic should subside. The anticipated revival did not take place, and the Chilian troubles sent prices sharply downward in England, and consequently in this country. A large demand for money has resulted, coupled with the sale of large blocks of American stocks in London, and there has been an unusual demand for the extension of loans.

The rising tendency in the stock market on Saturday at the close was continued this morning, and first prices were generally from is to & per cent better than the closing figures of Saturday while in many cases further slight improvement was made during the early trading. There was, however, very little of interest in the market, only St. Paul, Louisville & Nashville and Burlington & Quin-Louisville & Nashville and Burlington & Quin-cy being really active with a moderate busi-ness in Bock Island and Lackawanna, while the remainder of the market was dull and featureless as usual of late. REN BY OFFICE-HOLDERS.

The meeting was attended mainly by office-holders who have figured actively in politics for years. Among those reported as having attended in response to Committeman Fitzgerald's call were Charles Francis, Chief Sanitary Officer; Mike Casey, a City Hall janitor; Mike Murphy of the Street Department; Joe Devoy, clerk in the Comptroller's office; James J. McGarry, Assistant Jury Commissioner; Central Committeeman Fitzgerald, Hugh T. Pattison, Clerk of the Criminal Court; O. F. Guthrie, one of the Mayor's selections for Street Commissioner who fell short of confirmation; George McSkimming, John D. O'Keefe, John Blyholder and Pat Griffin, Janitor of the Court-house. When the statement was made by the "practical" campaigner, the meeting to all accounts did not take kindly to the proposition, and there was no rush of volunteers to get the men to do the voting on the Republican names. In his remarks on the subject, the worker, it appears, did not make himself quite clear as to whether he wanted to vote the Republican names at the Democratic primary or at the regular election, and before he could tell what he was aiming at somebody else got the floor and in this way shut off the man with the proposition. lse got the floor and in this way shut off the else got the floor and in this way shut off the man with the proposition.

The statesman quoted as having made this announcement to the caucus has a rather unsavory record in politics and his services in the last Eighth District campaign did not raise his standing any in the political arena.

A POST-DISPATCH reporter this morning asked Assistant Jury Commissioner McGarry what the worker meant by his remarks concerning the poil-books. In reply he said that the politician named had not made the statement attributed to him. "I was present at the meeting for a while," he said, "and heard him speak of getting the complete registration of the ward up to the day of the primary, but there was nothing said about making any improper use of it. said about making any improper use of it.

DIDN'T HEAR IT.

George McSkimming also denied that the statement had been made. He said: "The meeting at Mr. Tayon's house was an informal one, called by the Central Committeeman for the purpose of appointing committees to look after the proper registration and transferring of Democratic voters and also to make arrangements for the holding of a public meeting, to select delegates to the coming city convention. The invitations to the meeting were limited to the seating capacity of the parlor, where it was held. The public meeting will most likely be held a week before the date of the primary."

D. J. Sullivan, the Congressional Committeeman of the Twenty-fourth ward, said that the report had been given much circulation ch circula in the ward and that it was generally be-lieved. He had not attended the meeting, but was told by several persons that the proposition had been made to vote on the names of the stay-away Republicans. He had formed the imaway Republicans. He was given the information, and then denied that there had been any gathering at his house whatever or that any such statement had ever been made in his hearing.

The only conclusion to be drawn from the conflicting stories is that something did occur at the meeting that the workers who atled it do not want known.

STILL AFTER SULLIVAN.

The same faction that participated in the meeting has given notice that it will challenge "Big Mike" Sullivan, the ex-Central Committeeman of the ward, if he attempts to vote at the primary. Their reason for this, they state, is that Sullivan flew the Democratic track in signing the call for the Oltizens' Municipal ticket. They have been ontagonizing Sullivan for years and declare they now have him in a position that will prevent his ever getting to the front again as a Democratic leader in the Ward.

Pictures and Discounts.

If any of our competitors in the picture and frames business show a willingness to push frames business show a willingness to push trade during a quiet season by making a reduction in their prices we will promptly give them credit for commendable energy, provided the reduction is fair and honest, but when one of them steps out and announces an indefinite reduction over an assumed name we object. Picking out of stock some undesirable goods and offering a "discount" on them proportioned to their age or length of service is one kind of a reduction; but even such a one should be made over a firm's own name—not one borrowed from the grave. We will discount such discounters.

I have been traveling five weeks, studying all the while, and have noted the social, political, financial and commercial questions which have recently come up. First of these is the currency question. It is not so much currency as confidence that is wanted, and this is understood by the intelligent men of the West as well as the East. Prosperity in business is founded on confidence, not more or less of a circulating medium, but in the payment of interest, the payment of debts and ment of interest, the payment of debts and prompt settlement of all transactions. From the New York Times.

It may comfort some nervous and emotional women to know that a French physician has declared in favor of a "good cry." cian has declared in favor of a "good cry." He encourages groaning and crying during surgical operations, and is of opinion that such patients as yield to their emotions and let nature's grand outlets for allaying pain be unchoked recover more quickly than those who from a feeling that it is weak to utter groans and cries restrain them. He cites a case of a man who brought his pulse down sixty beats by giving himself up notshy to his strained and assvous condition for two hours. So cry, good sisters, if you want to, and rest in the belief that science sanctions it.

AN INFORMAL DISCUSSION. The Meeting Held in Dr. Ford's Study at the Second Baptist Church. A meeting of not quite a dozen persons several Protestant denominations was held in one of the small pariors of the Second Baptist Church last Monday afternoon. It is stated Only cond authority that the meeting was called at the instance of a former Superintendent of a St. Louis Sunday-school, who so flate years not been connected with the tendent of a St. Louis Sunday-school, who has of late years not been connected with the school. It turned out that the purpose in view with this person was to present his views on the subject of Catholic supremacy in municipal government. Few responded to the invitation, and they only spoke informally on the remarks he made. Nothing was done towards the organization of the meet-streets, in whose parlor the meeting was held, discussed the affair with a Post Dis-Parch reporter this morning.

"The published report of the meeting is far out of proportion to its importance," said Dr. Ford, smilingly. "I told the reporter who came to see me about the matter that if he was not careful he would make a mountain out of a mole hill, and that is what he has done. I decline to accept any responsibility for the meeting. I did not call it, and the fact that it was held in any church does not give it the sanction of the Second Baptist Church, as I frequently grant the use of our parlors for meetings in which I have no especial interest. I would even do so as a matter of accommodation, for a meeting with which I might not be in sympathy. But because the meeting was held in the parlor of the Second Baptist Church, and because I was, for the time being, the host of those present, I do not feel at liberty to give the names of the gentlemen who attended it, or tell what was done. I would state, however, that there is absolutely no reason for secrecy in the matter, and I am perfectly willing for any one else to tell everything that transpired. When that is done the sensation will shrink to very small proportions and support my original statement that it was not worthy of much attention."

Further investigation made it appear prob-

Further investigation made it appear probable that the "secret" meeting will prove to have been simply an unsuccessful effort on the part of one or two persons of radical views to convert others who take the sensible grounds of opposition to any religious inter-ference to personer notions.

COR. BROADWAY AND LOCUST. A DRUMMER'S DERTS.

Mark Franklin Is Compelled to Disgorge by Two Constables.

Within the four walls of room 282, Southern lotel, at 11 o'clock Saturday night, quite an exciting scene took place. Constable Dolan his assistant, Thomas Hand, and Mari Franklin, a finely dressed jewelry drummer of New York, were the principals.
The Constable was serving an attachment on Franklin's wearing apparel, and the latter was protesting in the most vigorous language.

For several months Mark Franklin, it is ameged, has owed Joseph Jacoby, and New York drummer, the sum of because of money he had io branklin when the latter was hard up. St. day Jacoby met Franklin on the st. Franklin, it is said, denied he owed the money. Jacoby to Justice Patrick Kane's controlled the street head to be seen the controlled the street head to be seen the street head to st to Justice Patrick Kane's court and had an attachment issued. Constables Dolan and Hand went to the Southern and laid in wait for Franklin. The gentleman went to his room finally, and while cleansing his hands his room was invaded by the two constables. The legal paper was read. Franklin swore that not one thing should be removed from the room. But Dolan got the gold watch from the vest on the chair, while Hand got a diamond pin from a neckite. Franklin seeding this sprang to the door the hall and locked the door on the outside. Soon he returned, making the air blue with his blessings as he came, and brought with him a friend. They could whip the constables, they said. But they didn't. Franklin's friend counted over $57.80 in good currency, and got the watch and diamond pin back. Mr. Franklin says the claim was illegal, but he settled because he did not want to have a scene.

MANIPULATING PASSENGER RATES.

The Latest Scheme of the Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City. KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 9.—There is rouble brewing in the Western passenger ircles on account of the action of the Chiago, St. Paul & Kansas City in manipulating cago, St. Paul & Kansas City in manipulating passenger rates. On the one day limited Chicago ticket the road heretofore extended the time to five days, and by scalping on local points did a big business. The principal points receiving the benefit of the scalped rate were Des Moines and Marshalltown. The matter came to the attention of the other roads, and such pressure was brought to bear that these tickets were withdrawn. Now the same road is issuing five day limited tickets to Forest Home, ten miles this side of Chicago, to which point there is no rule to govern the rate, and the old system of scalping is practiced on this ticket. Theother roads have discovered the plan and threaten to resort to some desperate method if the ticket is not withdrawn.

The Springfield (Mass.) Republican pub-lished extracts from the book of a doctor 100 years old. Of the social habits of the young women we learn "that a considerable num women we learn "that a considerable number of their complaints proceed from the frequent changes of dress, and the alternate vicissitudes from heat to cold, to which fashion and the love of pleasure expose them. There are instances of young ladies in this city (Philadelphia) who, for the sake of an elegant and admired shape apply a leather bandage, dipt in water, round their waist every night when going to bed, which contracts as it becomes dry." It appears that the novel flend was not unknown even in those days, for he says: "Many young ladies who, regardless of exercise, customary meals, or necessary repose are perpetually employed in reading love-inspiring novels, not only impair their constitutions, but pervert their imagination and corrupt their morals to such a degree, that they are ever after rendered unfit for the offices of domestic life, and unqualified to promote domestic felicity." A rather heavy judgment against our grandmothers.

rom the Brooklyn Eagle. Everything goes by rages in New York so clety. The present craze is for dinner-giv-ing. Nobody who is sufficiently anybody to ing. Nobody who is sufficiently anybody to know nice people need go hungry these days, even if he has felt the pinch of Wall street and run behind in his steward's bill at the club. As for the average poor relative, he or she is in gastronomic clover. For, be it understood, it is not enough to dine your friends; your generosity must mirror itself in the presense of kinsmen and women who enjoy at your board a luxury fortune has denied them at their own. An average of one poor relative to every three guests is, I believe, the proper proportion. In contrast to the expansineness of its hospitality the simplicity of the style with which the hospitality is dispensed is to be noted. Very little in the way of flowers and a simple menu rule. The family cook takes the place of the caterer and bouquets supplant flowers. Gold plate is absolutely bad form, and silver only permissible on very stately occasions.

POINTS FOR SPORTSMEN.

THE MILD WINTER MEANS A GOOD BEASON FOR GAME AND FISH.

The Angler Will Have Fun This Summer-Very Light Fowling Pieces in Demand— How to Re-Brown Gun Barrels—Good Fishing Grounds.

This outlook for anglers and other sports men is more favorable for the coming season than for many years past. This is owing to the exceptional mildness of the last and the present winter. This encouraging prospect is of greater force in the Western States than those of the East. In the latter the cont depletion of fish and game, with no corre sponding recuperative force, are factors which even the favorable weather conditions have failed measurably to supply. Within a brief period, at the West, enlarged legislative action, an aroused public sentimen and a general awakening to the situation, has led to strenuous exerions to protect and preserve the game of the fields and the fish of the streams. The the increased revenues which may be derived tion to this subject. Agriculturists have ed to relinquish the hitherto prevailing notion that by protecting and preserving game they are encouraging a danger-ous enemy to their growing crops. They find that a comfortable addition may be made to their incomes by letting the privileges to kill game to sportsmen, and that if they care to harvest the feathered crop themselves they may secure a return proportionately as sure try. The same is true of the fish in the streams which flow through their lands. There is hardly a day that we do controlling a large extent of territory, unit-ing for the purpose of reaping the benefits of an increased abundance of fish and game. The Farmers' Alliance of Kansas has taken the most advanced hand in this direction, and is alive to the benefits which may accrue from a close attention to this subject. This action of the Alliance is intended to put a top to the great destruction, particularly of uall, which prevailed universally in Kansas uring the close season of the past year. In Michigan, the grayling fishing, which ap peared the greatest attraction to anglers, in peared the greatest attraction to angiers, in the northern portion of the State, and which was thought to have become almost extinct, promises the coming season to greatly re-vive, through the cessation of logging in most of the streams. Chicago anglers are now thoroughly aroused and united in the determination to protect the valuable waters of the State and the territory north of that city. Several stringent laws are now await-ing the action of the Legislature of Illinois for the furtherance of that purpose.

PROTECTING THE FISH. In Washington and Ogden the initiative is also being taken to prevent the pollution of its famous stream with sawdust and the waste products of other manufactories harm-ful to piscine life. Indiana is disposed to adopt radical measures for the protection o its fish and game than any other State. It is questionable, however, whether there the people generally are willing at present to carry protection as far as is projected. The fact that the press is giving an enlarged attention to these matters has been the strongest factor in remedying evils which without the actions. its assistance, would within a brief period have brought the West to the front of deple-tion in its fish and game as that which now prevails at the East.

English woodcock and partridges are now being sold in the New York market for $1 each. The first are almost as large again as our sort, while the second are even propor-tionately of greater size than our quall. Even at the height of the season native woodcock do not bring much less than the English bird, while quail at a cost of $2.50 to $3 per dozen will not be as cheap, so far as bulk is con-cerned, as four English partridges. With a vastly larger population to the square mile in England, the abundance of game there is proof that with the same effort for its protection and propagation, equally valuable re-sults may be attained in the United States.

In the past, and even to-day, the Indians used a stick upon which to rest the gun when alming at large game not in motion. Although this was more in vogue in the days when muzzle-loaders were exclusively used, the custom has not been abandoned even in presence of the breech-loader. In employing the rest the Indians assume the military position—kneeling—while aiming. The stick is about 4½ feet long. The Utes, Snakes, Pawnees and Blackfeet, in order to make a crotch, avail themselves of two sticks, which offer a firmer rest.

NITRO COMPOUND POWDERS.

The introduction of the nitro-compound powders has undoubtedly enhanced the merits of shotguns of 16 and 20 bore. The first, loaded with 2½ drams of the chemical product and 1½ ounces of shot, and the second with 2 drams and 1 ounce of shot, will have little or no recoil. Moreover, great advantages are gained in the use of these small bores loaded with nitro-powder, both in the lesser weight of the ammunition and of the weapon, freedom from smoke, handlness of the gun, good pattern and penetration, less bodily fatigue and with a corresponding accuracy of aim. The famous sportsmen of the Teche country of Louisiana use exclusively these very light guns. They hunt on horseback, and in shooting hold the weapon at arm's length. A brace of English snipe frequently falls to the two barrels.

The results of the experiments made at the

The results of the experiments made at the Springfield National Armory by a board of Government officers, during the past few months, indicate that our makers of nitro-

The re-browning of guns may be done by sportsmen without recourse to a gunsmith.
For English twist or steel barrels the following preparation may be used:
Spirit of niter 1 oz.
Tincture of steel & dram.

Sublimate of mercury 1/2 dram, Blue stone & dram. oft or rain water 1/2 pint. Spirits of niter 1/2 oz. Spirits of wine 1 dram. Tincture of steel 1 dram.

Tincture of steel 1 dram.
Soft water 1 quart.
The first is available one week after being made, the second, one month—the longer the better. Plug the breach and muzzle with tight fitting soft pine plugs, which must project about four inches, as a base upon which the barrel may rest while applying the preparation, to prevent the mixture ifrom entering the bore, and as a hold for the operator, whose fingers must not touch the barrels while the work is in progress. First polish with No. 80 or 100 emery cloth polish with No. 80 or 100 emery cloth coated with sperm oil or lard. The last polish may be made with No. 120 emery cloth. Then wips clean with dry cotton washer or rags. The barrels may now cotton washer or rags. The barrels may now be covered with a coating of whiting mixed with water, which when dry can be scratched of with a scratch brush or piece of file card, movement being always lengthwise of the barrel. When the whiting is removed with scratches or dry cloths, the browning fluid thoroughly mixed by shaking, must be purned into a shallow earthen dish. Hold the breach-plug in the hand, the muzzle-plug resting on a beach. With a clean cotton cloth apply the browning, always working lengthwise of the barrel. Nothing containing a suspicion of grease should be used. Warmth is absolutely requisite in applying the mixture. After the first application wait about five (8) hours, then scratch off the rust, the same as the whiting, so long as it will dust or fly. At intervals of about five hours during the day repeat the operation. This must be continued for a week, the straining touches are given by scratching the last coat, pouring scalding water down the barrels; allowing them to stand until thoroughly cold—this kills the action of the browning and corrosion—scratch again thoroughly, but lightly—rub with a clean cloth, then apply boiled linseed oil with a clean cloth, then apply boiled linseed oil with a clean cloth, are absolutely essential to success. On no account must the mixture be allowed to freeze; nor must a particle of grease touch the barrels while undergoing the process. Never permit even the tips of the fingers to touch them while the work is in progress.

FISHING GROUNDS.

Although Minnesota possesses thousands of splendid lakes and streams once filled with an apparently inexhaustible supply of the finest game fish, prompt measures are necesan apparently inexhaustible supply of the finest game fish, prompt measures are necessary to check the process of depletion from which they are suffering.

The great body of summer visitors are no more to blame for this than the native fisherman. The latter are more destructive, inasmuch as their opportunity comes in the spring—before the arrival of the former—when the fish are on their seewing beds. Although fish are on their spawning beds. Although the State has been liberal in planting brook trout, and with good results, it has been somewhat niggardly in appointing the necessary officials to make its efforts thoroughly effective. It has but one game and fish warden, and to him it gives a salary of only $200. He is a model and efficient officer, however, as he employs an assistant to whom he pays more than the amount of which he is recipient. Every year the number of angling tourists who visit Minnesota is not be because. on the increase. These distribute great sums of money, which percolates, with benefit, through many channels. It would seem wise in order to encourage an increased flow of this monetary tide, that the State should put forth every exertion to propagate and pro-tect the fish of the streams and lakes, which are one of the strongest magnets of attrac-

On the line of the Canadian Pacific Railroad of trout fishing. Spanish River is a type of the first; a fine stream which makes a the nrst; a line stream which makes a trout fisher's eyes sparkle at the sight of its swift waters, rocks and falls. But the trout does not live there; the water is boggy. There are many more of these virgin streams, most likely looking, and which to all appearances should be alive with trout, but in which there is none. Between Pardee and Port Arthur, a distance of 264 miles, and along the whole north shore of Lake Superior, which extends for hundreds of miles, is the great trout country. Of all the streams which flow into this lake on the north shore; there is not one in a dozen which does not contain an abund ance of those fish.

RESULTS OF FISH CULTURE.
Artificial fish culture has revealed the fact that fish like the feathered species are sometimes egg bound, and cannot pass their eggs without assistance. The operation for their know whether they are ripe, and precisely in condition to spawn. When this fact is assured, by simply enlarging slightly the vent, the eggs may be safely expressed. The operation is performed with the small blade of a pen-knife.

The first split bamboo rod was made some thirty-six years ago, by Samuel Philippi of Easton, Pa. The butt was made of ash, tapered below the reel-seat; the joint and tip of bamboo in four sections and built round. But three of these rods are now known to be in existence. From one of these made by Philippi was conceived the idea of the pressplit bamboo rod.

A rod particularly suited, where a heavy sinker or bait is required to be cast from a free-running multiplying reel, may be made of two pieces of equal length, with but one joint, the latter being non-doweled, not cylindrical ferrules. The entire length is seven and a half feet and of a weight of eight or nine ounces. SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 9 .- A package containing $6,000 worth of diamonds was stolen from Mrs. H. Willis, a widow, last week. A Chinese servant in her employ returned the package to Mrs. Willis, but he refused to give her any information in regard to the theft. The police authorities have learned that the Chinaman is a well-known highbinder and have advised the widow not to discharge or attempt to prosecute him, no matter how strongly she might suspect the Mongolian of having something to do with the theft, as they believe the highbinders would surely take revenge on Mrs. Willis if she were instrumental in getting one of them into trouble. tolen from Mrs. H. The engine struct the rig between the wheels and threw it into the air. Both father and son were dead when the train was stopped and the mother cannot recover.

WESTERN PREPARATORY SCHOOLS. sident Eliot Speaks in High Terms of Their Efficiency.

The Western preparatory schools have excited the admiration of President Eliot of Harvard. In reference to them he said: "I admit that I am surprised to find the schools so excellent in the West. In many respects so excellent in the West. In many respects they are ahead of our New England schools. In the East teachers are rather too much bound by tradition, and are inclined to consider any new move as a change for the worse. This feeling is not prevalent in the West, and the attitude of the schools of this section has greatly added to their efficiency. If a change promises well they try it, and take the back track if they find that they are wrong. In this way they very quickly winnow the wheat from the chaft."

When President Dwight of Yale was in this city he expressed himself to the same effect, but was not surprised at the efficiency of the Western schools, as he said that Yale professors know year, well what material professors knew very well what material they turned out. But a small percentage of the under graduates of Yale are from New England, while nearly half of those of Har-vard are from Massachusetts and the ad-to have the committee indorse the Others favor the indorsement of the Fall One Hundred and Twenty Feet.

From the Lewiston (Me.) Journal. How John Johnson, the Monson swede, tumbled into the slate quarry pit has been told. Just how Johnson felt as he went through his wonderful fall of 120 feet sheer descent is yet to be narrated. The man had just emerged from the pit box used for ascent and descent, when, as he stepped upon the edge of the pit, the box swung, knocking him over the edge. Down he shot out of sight of his horrified companions. The side of the quarry is not exactly perpendicular, being spurred with shelves sloping toward the bottom of the pit. Johnson dropped several score of feet and struck the first shelf in a sitting posture. He glanced off into space, turned several revolutions, and struck another shelf, and then shot with terrific force into a deep snowdrift at the bottom of the quarry. Said a fellow workman who had been with Johnson at the edge of the pit: "I did not dare to go forward and look down for fear I should see the man lying mangled on the rocks below. While I hestfated up came the box and Johnson sat in it uninjured." When asked how he felt during his tumble he replied that he had no memory of it at all. It was all a blank from the time he left the edge of the pit until he brought up at the bottom. A peculiar feature of the case is that the man lost his pipe from his mouth when he fell, and could not be induced to leave the scene until it had been found. tumbled into the slate quarry pit has been

SUDDEN RISE IN THE RIVER AT NASH-VILLE CAUSING TROUBLE.

Above the Danger Line-Bridges Washed Away at Pachuta, Miss.—The Situation at Knoxville, Chattanooga and Green

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 9.—The recent heavy rain has set the Cumberland River rising at a frightful rate. At 10 o'clock last night it registered 46.4 feet, a rise of 6 feet in twenty-four hours. A dispatch from Port Burnside says that the rainfall there during the last twenty-four hours was 2½ inches and that the river went up 2.8 feet. News is anxiously awaited from that point. The river was up to South street in this city, and the residents in the lower part of the city, are in a sorry plight. All day yesterday skiffs and canoes were used in saving household effects. Most of the homeless are housed in the upper part of the city. At midnight the 'river' was going up at the rate of 2 inches an hour.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon the river contin-going up at the rate of 2 inches an hour.

At 10 clock this afternoon the river continues to rise slowly at about one-quarter of an inch an hour. The gauge registers 48.8 feet. As the rise is more gradual, the people occupying houses in the flooded district are being cared for by the different charitable orders of the city. It is expected the river will begin to recede about 6 o'clock this afternoon, as reports have been received from up-river points to the effect that the high waters are slowly falling.

SECRETARY PROCTOR'S VISIT TO THE VARIOUS MILITARY POSTS.

epresentative Crain and Tom Reed—The Ex-Speaker's Queer "Apology"—The Pacific Squadron—Smokeless Powder Tests-Washington News.

Tests—Washington News.

Washington, D. C., March 9.—Secretary Proctor started off to-day on an extensive inspection tour of military posts. He will first make a tour of Texas, thence to New Mexico, Arizona and onward to the Pacific Coast. He will return by the northern route, stopping at all the important posts en route. He will stop at Chicago to examine the progress being made on buildings at Fort Sheridan and with the view to determine what allottment he will make for carrying on work there during the next fiscal year. The sum of $756,000 is available for distribution among about a half dozen large posts, including Fort Sheridan. One of the objects of the Secretary's tour at this time is to ascertain the needs, by personal inspection, of the more important posts before making the allotment. It is understood that the Quarter-master General will recommend the allotment of $200,000 for Fort Sheridan.

Tom REED AND MR. CRAIN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 9.—Representative Crain of Texas is a personal favorite with Mr. Reed. The relations between the two are so friendly and intimate that Mr. Crain had no hesitation in stepping up to the ex-Speaker after the final adjournment of the House last Wednesday and inquiring what apology he had to make for his high-handed treatment of the House. Mr. Reed paused, smilled, searched the ceiling a few seconds for an answer and then said:

smiled, searched the ceiling a few seconds for an answer and then said:

"My dear boy, you puzzle me. Your question makes me feel pretty much as Lord Clive, according to his own expression, might have felt when he was under examination by a committee of the British Parliament on a charge of having acted in too high-handed a manner in India. You remember that as commander of the British forces in India Clive was accused of accepting, for his own benefit, presents from the native Princes whom he had subdued, and of being unkind in his treatment of some of those native Princes. Clive thought of the condition in which he found British interests in India and the condition in which he left them. He recalled the horrors of the 'Black Hole' of Calcutta, and the 'fact that there was not a British force within 15,000 miles to avenge that atrocity. Moreover, he remembered that the British had been deprived of nearly all the foothoid they had ever had in India, and were on the point of being driven, bag and bagagge, into the Indian Ocean when he organized, almost created, a small force with which he turned the tide on the natives and established the British Empire in India. Then he remembered how complete his yictories were what year on to complete his yictories were what year on to complete his yictories were what year on to complete his yictories were what year on the point of the complete his yictories were what year on the point of the complete his yictories were what year on the point of the complete his yictories were what year on the point of the complete his yictories were what year on the point of the complete his yictories were what year on the point of the complete his yictories were what year on the point of the complete his yictories were what year on the point of the complete his yictories were what year on the point of the complete his yictories were what year on the point of ated, a small force with which he turned the tide on the natives and established the British Empire in India. Then he remembered how complete his victories were, what vast opportunities he had for revenge, how thoroughly he had the barbarians in his power, and how little mercy the barbarians deserved. When he thought of the opportunities he had, and of how little advantage he had taken of them, of the temptations that beset him, and of how little he yielded, his indignation at the paltry charges presented against him boiled over, and he could not help exclaiming: 'My God, gentlemen, I am amazed at my own moderation.'

''And you will not forget,'' Mr. Reed added suggestively, ''that the House of Commons, as a result of that investigation, passed unanimously a resolution declaring that Lord Clive had rendered great and meritorious services to England and to India.''

THE PACIFIC SQUADRON.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Marqh 9.—It is stated that several vessels will shortly be added to the Pacific Squadron. The American fleet in the Pacific is reduced to three vessels—the Charleston, at San Francisco, and the Iroquels and the Mohican at Honolulu. The

As American interests in the Med way group and at Samoa require constan watching it will be simply impossible to hav any vessels in the Northern Pacific during the coming fishing season, unless some of the other squadrons are drawn upon. It may also become necessary to send more vessel to Chili. This is the situation on the Pacific on the market. Bidding rose to $25.75 before a sale was made, and at that figure twenty shares changed hands. More was wanted at the second contact the second contact the concord nearly ready for sea. There is nothing urgent demanding the presence of all these vessels here. The desquadron of evolution will shortly be de tached and sent to join the Pacific. One of these will be the Atlanta and the other will probably be the Dolphin, as she is wanted for making the survey for the proposed sub marine cable between San Francisco and th Hawaiian Islands. There is also some talk of sending the Philadelphia to the Pacific. Il this should be done the Newark would be as-signed as flagship of the home squadron. The next naval vessel to be launched will be the coast defense vessel, the Monterey, building by the Union Iron Works of Sar Francisco. She is now practically ready to leave her ways and although the Messrs, scott are anxious to get her in the water in

Scott are anxious to get her in the water in order that they may commence laying the keel of the battle ship, they will probably postpone the time of launching until the arrival of the presidential party on the Pacific coast about the 1st of April,

The award of the contract for the torpedoboat of the Cushing type is proving a difficult matter for the Secretary of the Navy to settle. He is inclined to favor Herrschoff, because he is the lowest bidder and also besettle. He is inclined to lavor herrschoff, because he is the lowest bidder and also because he has demonstrated by the success of the Curhing his ability to build a good boat, but the Board of Bureau Chiefs like better the plans submitted by the Cowles company of New York, and between their recommenda-New York, and between their recommenda-tions and the lively log-rolling that is going on in behalf of each of the bidders, the Secretary is much embarrassed. The 7,400 triple screw cruiser provided for in the new naval bill, the torpedo cruiser, which cannot be built because the appropriation is too small; Dynamite Oruiser No. 2 and the torpedo boat above referred to are the only vessels author-ized for which contracts have not been let. The Despatch is to be spared from consign-ment to the scrap heap. By a tight squeeze the engineers have been able to secure the cost of supplying her with new boilers to bring it within the 20 per cent limit. The re-pairs will probably be made at the New York yard.

SMOKELESS POWDER TESTS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 9.—Late advices received by army ordnance officers from abroad indicate marked improvement in the development of smokeless powders during the last few months. So successful have some of the experiments in Germany and France been, that our officials are prepared to believe that the problem has at last been solved, and that the day of black and brown prismatic powders for high power as well as small guns, is past. The highest velocities and lowest pressures ever obtained from an eight-inch gun were those developed with some of the Nobel (German) smokeless powder used in a Krupp gun a short time ago. Splendid results were also recently obtained by the French with a new smokeless powder tried in a gun of four-inch caliber. Our army officials were so struck with the success of these powders that negotiations were at once made for samples for experiment in this country.

A Touching Ceremony.	River News.
From the London Globe.	ARRIVALS.
The royal palace in Madrid was on Wednesday the scene of a touching ceremony. The royal chaplains carried the host of state from the chapel on the first floor of the palace to an apartment on the second floor, close to the little King's chamber, where His Majesty's chief governess, the venerable Senora de Tacon, lay dying at the age of 8i. This lady was, thirty years ago, the governess of the late King Alfonso, and at the birth of his posthumous son, the present King, she was made head of his household, she dying from the effects of injuries she received under extraordinary circumstances last week. She was in the same room with the little King, who insisted upon getting on a table and was about to spring therefrom when his aged governess rushed forward to catch him. Unfortunately, they both fell. The King lay so quietly under her gown that all present supposed him injured, but he got up laughing and scathless. Not so Senora de Tacon, who was internally injured. Queen Christina,	Idlewild with her mother, the Archduchess Isabella, all the Bourbon princesses, and the lords and ladies in waiting, accompanied the host and	day for this port. She will be followed by the Olive Bierne. Both boats will be entered in the excursion business here this summer.

MAYOR NOONAN CORRECTS A FALSE IM-PRESSION AT THE CAPITOL.

The Chief Executive Sends a Letter to Lieut.-Gov. Claycomb About the Un-derground Wire Bill-Contract for Brick Work on the New City Hall.

Subway and underground wire affairs have taken another turn in the last few days, and this morning while the members of the Board of Public Improvements were considering plans of the Subway company and the Refrigerator company, Mayor Noonan and City lor Bell were constructing a letter to Lieut. Tom Claycomb on the underground-

The plan the Board has is for a tunnel from Third street, out Olive to Seventeenth street in which a man can walk upright, with room The Mayor's letter is as follows:

v. Claycomb, President of the Sena City, Mo.:

Lieut. Gov. Claycomb, President of the Senate, Jefferson City, Mo.:

DEAR SIR—I address this letter to you for the purpose of correcting the impression which seems to prevail at Jefferson City, that the people of St. Louis do not desire the passage of what is known as the underground wire bill. The fact is that the action of the Senate in laying said bill on the table is a great disappointment to public sentiment here, which is strongly in favor of the measure. The new gas company, having in view perhaps the success of junketing in the case of the garbage grabbers, invited the entire ise of Delegates to take a trip to Chicago and view the gas-works there, which are of the same model as the ones proposed in the new bill. The Council Committee on Claims will do some more weeding out this afternoon. It has before it the task of knocking on the head a batch of claim bills which the House of Delegates has passed. The Crimes Charged Against Rose Zoll doski, a Pretty Milliner. RICHLAND CENTER, Wis., March 9.—Prof Haines, the chemist, at the Rush Medica College, at Chicago, has written District At torney Burnham that he has found strych nine in the stomach of Mrs. Mitchell. Thi adds another crime to the burden of Rose Zolldoski, the pretty milliner, who is now in jail charged with poisoning Elia Maiy, her rival for the affection of Dr. Mitchell. Miss Zoldoski has not yet been informed of the conclusion of the Chicago chemist, though she knew that the body of Mrs. Mitchell had been raised.

Ella Maly died in Richland Center on Jan. 9 in great agony. The evening before she had been the guest of Richland Center's pretty milliner at tea. Miss Zoldoski had other guests, but it was noticed that she was particularly attentive to Miss Maly. This occasioned some humorous comment at the ime, as it was known that Miss Zoldoski was very much infatuated with a recently-made widower, Dr. Mitcheil, and that he had been very attentive to Miss Maly. It was commented on in apother-way when it was learned that on her way home Miss Maly. Her stomach was removed and sent to Prof. Haines, who, on Jan. 17, reported that he had found a large quantity of poison. A warrant was sworn out for Miss Zoldoski's arrest, and she was lodged in jail. Gossip had brought out many facts connected with the death of Dr. Mitchell's wife, and the relations of the doctor and the milliner before his wife died. It was said that Mrs. Mitchell's death was very like that of Miss Maly's and that Miss Zoldoski had been with her a short time before she was taken ill.

The prosecuting officers decided to investigate the matter, exhumed the body of Mrs. Mitchell and sent the stomach to Chicago with that end in view. They claim to have two strong circumstantial cases of murder against the Polish girl.

A NOVEL SCENE.

For a little while the novelty of the thing kept them quiet, but in a few moments such a chatter commenced as was never heard before. And such a sight was probably never witnessed before in St. Louis. The bright eyes, the busy fingers all so intent upon transforming the cloth into little garments of dainty form and fash-A NOVEL SCENE. ion. Your fine gowns and ball-room airs and graces never formed such a becoming background for your faces. You all look so sweet and so womanly. But come to lunch. I have provided a lunch for you which I know you will relish as you never relished a meal before."

They all repaired to the dining room and it is hardly necessary to say that the morning's work had given everyone a tremendous appetite and that the plain, wholesome meal provided was greatly enjoyed by all.

When the afternoon was far spent adjournment was taken for "tea" and a merrier lot of girls could not have been found in all 8t. Louis. They were all surprised at the seeming rapidity at which the time had passed and were all pleased at having spent the afternoon so usefully as well as so pleasantly.

The hostess thanked them most heartily for naving assisted her in setting a new fashion and in assisting her in her spring sewing, as they had done more sewing in a day than a seamstress would have done in three weeks.

SEWING CIRCLES NOW ALL THE RAGE
IN THE WEST END.

Since that day these sewing parties have become the rage, and the girls are priding themselves upon becoming adepts in the art of plain sewing, as fancy work is not tolerated at these meetings. Old fashioned "sewing beets" were well enough in their way, but there is nothing like these new-fashioned sewing parties for real pleasure and substantial service. The "quiltings" of our grandmothers' youthful days seemed very pleasant, especially that part where the young beaux arrived to take supper with a house full of little children, heard of it and the next day she addressed the cutest little notes of invitation to twenty society belles, to meet at her house on a certain morning, and admonishing them not to forget their thimbles. The young ladies were all on the qui vive to find out what these invitations meant, and they young ladies were all on the qui vive to find out what these invitations meant, and they arrived promptly upon the day appointed without a missing number and were cordially greeted by their hostess. A GOOD JONE.

One young lady told a joke on herself at a late meeting which should go on record. She went to spend a morning with the sister of her betrothed when he was first beginning to single her out and before the momentous question had been asked. She was most anxious to appear well in the eyes of his sister, a rich and prominent widow with one little girl who will be a great helress when she becomes of age. This lady has many old-fash-joned ideas and one of them is that no girl would be a fit wife for her brother who is ignorant of domestic knowledge. She must know how to work, keep house and to sew. She invited her brother's sweetheart into her morning room and bringing out a lot of spring remnants said, "I am going to commence susie's summer dresses and while I am down to see the cook about lunch you may cut out those skirts for me." Horror of horrors' to leave this young lady who knew nothing of plain sewing to cut out a 5-year-old girl's dress skirt. How was it possible for her to make a grand impression on Charley's sister? Growing desperate, she seized a piece of mustin and calling the little girl to her, she carefully measured the length and width of the dress she wore and then commenced cutting and tearing as if she were used to it. Soon her hostes returned and looking at her with approval said: "You seem used to it. You have made dresses for your own little sisters, but"—approaching nearer—"stop A GOOD JOKE.

The sister of her sweetheart actually thanked her for teaching her something new.

"But I will know all about sewing now thanks to these Lenten parties," said th young lady in concluding her story,

The demands made on the popular department of the University have become so great that the board is ompelled to act at once, and will not let the matter go over for another year, as it is admitted by the faculty that the Training School should have been enlarged more than a year ago, when applicants were turned away for lack of room to accommodate them. The Manual Training School has grown in popularity each year under the excellent management of Prof. C. M. Woodward, and from a small class several years ago it has become one of the most important and largest branches of the University. The school is known throughout the country and the system of management has been copied in several large Eastern cities and schools of the same character are being added to the departments of many universities and colleges. ON AN UNUSUAL CHARGE.

WARRANTS ISSUED TO-DAY AGAINST KATIE NEVINS' ABDUCTORS.]

Bresnahan and Cassidy to Answer to a Charge of Obstructing the Process of the March Grand-Jury — Sent to the House of Good Shepherd.

This morning warrants were issued against Patrick Bresnahan and James Cassidy, the two men who enticed 14-year-old Katle Nevins away from her home, and who were arrested at Hillsboro Saturday and brought back here esterday. The warrants charge the me with obstructing the process of the March Grand-jury. The grounds on which this charge is based are that Bresnahan enticed the girl away from home to prevent her from responding to a subposta to appear before the Grand-jury Tuesday and make known the facts concerning her seduction by Bresnahan in the Eutaw Hotel, on Seventh and Walnut streets. The section of the statutes under which the warrant was issued is as follows:

Every person who shall, by bribery, menace or other means, directly or indirectly, induce or attempt to induce any witness or person who may be a competent witness to absent himself or avoid as subpens or other process, or to withhold his evidence, or shall deter or attempt to deter him from appearing or giving evidence in any cause, matter or proceeding, civil or criminal, and every such witness or person who may be a competent witness in any such case, who shall directly or indirectly accept, take or receive, or agree to accept, take or receive, any money or other valuable thing to absent himself, or avoid a subpens or other process, directly or indirectly accept, take or receive, or agree to accept, take or receive, any money or other valuable thing to absent himself, or avoid a subpena or other process, or to withhold his evidence in any such case; every person offending against the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, provided that if the case shall be a prosecution or proceeding against any person for a felony, the person so offending shall be punished by imprisonment in the pentientiary for two years or the country jail not exceeding six months or by fine not less than $100 of both such fine and imprisonment.

This change was made as a result of a consultation between Mr. Estep and Mr. Fauntle-sultation between Mr. Estep and Mr. Fauntieroy, the latter having been engaged by Mr. Nevins as special counsel for the prosecution.

In view of the fact that the girl had admit-Louis of her own free will and at nothing beyond his request, it was thought that the charge of abduction would hardly stand, and the warrant charging the men with that offense was withdrawn. The warrant for abduction had served its purpose in the hands of Detectives Danaher and Freeman as an instrument upon which to take Bresnahan and Cassidy warrant was issued, the girl's father, Mr. George Nevins, swearing to the complaint. On this warrant Bresnahan and Cassidy were this afternoon transferred from their cells in the holdover to quarters in the jail.

AN EXCITING CHASE.

The arrest of the pair at Hillsboro, Saturday, was attended with some exciting incidents.

At Hillsboro Bresnahan applied to Recorder Simon McNierney for a license to marry Katle Nevins, and asserted that Cassidy was her uncle, Charles Wilson. The Recorder was suspicious and refused, saying they were an suspicious and reinsed, saying they were an eloping couple. To get the officers the Recorder said he would go and hunt up a paper for the purpose of comparing names. He hunted up the Sheriff, but while he was gone Bresnahan and Cassidy became uneasy left before the Sheriff arrived. fleeing men got a buggy and taking the zirl with them started for Victoria a few soff. Sheriff Forrest and County Treas-J. J. Hoeken organized a posse and ted after the fugitives. Forrest and back. Seeing them coming Cassidy whipped horses and a chase of about four les followed. The little girl was screaming all the time. At Victoria the citizens had turned out in response to a telegram from Hillsboro, but they could not stop the téam and Cassidy drove right through the crowd. When the fagged out horses hitched to when the larged out horses hitched to the carriage came to a stop, Bresnahan fired at Hoekin's horse, and then he and Cassidy took to the woods, and there was another race of six miles during which the bullets flew freely. After the capture Bresnahan and Cassidy were taken to Hillsboro and ought to St. Louis yesterday by Officers naher and Freema

THE PRISONERS SULLEN AND SILENT Since their capture at Hillsboro, the men have maintained an air of the most dogged silence. This step was taken with the consent of the parents, who now appreciate the fact that the girl was fast going to the bad on account of Bresnahan's evil influence. Both parents are bitter in their denunciation of Bresnahan, and insist that nothing will prevent them from pushing the case to the end. There is hardly a possibility but that the new warrant will hold the defendant to the Grand-jury. Indictments can then be returned in both this and the enticing case which prompted Bresnahan's desperate action. When the actions get into the Criminal Court a trial will first be had in the enticing case as this is a felony alone, while the obstruction case admits of a fine or jail im insurgents imprisoned at Freemantie, Western Australia.

This rescue was planned by the leaders of the National movement in Ireland upon information furnished by an escaped prisoner, and John Waish and a single associate were selected as leaders of the enterprise. The rescue was made by the crew of the ship Catalpa, commanded by Capt. Stone, and fitted out in the United States.

Still another episode in his life was his active participation in the disactrous assault upon Castle Chester in England, where a large quantity of arms was stored.

After the Phænix Park tragedy, in which Lord Cavendish and Mr. Burke were killed, in May, 1882, suspicion was directed against Walsh. He escaped to the United States via France and lived in New York and vicinity until a year or two ago, when he became insense and was taken to Flatbrush.

MR. BOOTH'S DECADENCE.

He Prefers to Be Indifferent When He

YORK, March 9.—The reappearance Mr. Edwin Booth in tragic roles has given Nym Crinkle of the New York World occasion to say the following: Mr. Edwin Booth's season at the Broadway Theater opened last week with "The Merchant of Venice," and was followed by "Julius Cæsar," Mr. Booth, as usual, playing Shylock and Brutus. Both as usual, playing Shylock and Brutus. Both performances were interesting reminiscences of an esteemed actor and of great productions—and nothing more. Mr. Booth's work was marked and marred by a careless feebleness wholly out of keeping with public expectation and personal record. If this were the result solely of declining, physical power, one might add a kindly reficence to the fluent tributes of the years and ignore the shortcomings of the present in the still suggestive memories of the past. Unfortunately, careful observation of Mr. Booth in his public exhibition does not warrant any such conclusion. His perform-warrant any such conclusion. His perform-ance indicate mental indolence and artistic ance indicate mental indolence and artistic indifference rather than physical weakness. It certainly does not require any great expenditure of physical strength to make himself up as carefully and properly in Shylock as he once did. And he need not exhaust himself by a little attention to the subordi nate scenes. The claim of Mr. Booth's foolish audators and the apparent agreement of Booth, is that the play is not the thing; to fact, it is of no concern whatever. Tessential thing is that Mr. Booth resur public exhibitions. Nothing can be farther from the truth and nones; and nearer to the imbecliity of personal complaisance than such a claim, and yet it has recently been made in print. If Mr. Booth's reputation does not shield him from such disapplied rubbish his dignity as an artist should. To assume that an actor who challenges public opinion is too weak to be told the truth, and that his mere appearance in public is of more importance than his task, ought to make him blush scarlet. The fact s there will never be a moment in his pro-essional relation to the public when retrospective honors will excuse present careless-ness. The new generation that is taken by the old to see the American actor of whom it has heard and read so much, is not likely to put up with a glaring inadequacy that it can see, and feel a consideration for a departed efficiency that it knows nothing about. The assumption that it will is one of the most lamentable indications of the laxity of what was once a rigid sense of justice in things theatrical—a laxity hat obtains now in certain esthetic quarters It is this puling sentimentality that is re-sponsible for the astounding fact that we do not make public paragons, but public pets, whose responsibility to the public is in inverse ratio to their talents, and in view of which esthetic criticism becomes esthetic condonement. In "Julius Cæsar" he shut his eyes at times and waited as if he were bored to death. At other times he started and recalled the duties of the moment suc denly. If there are no internal stimuli of en-deavor Mr. Booth need only turn to his great audiences for a moral lift. They love Mr. Booth in a vague way. Why should he disap-

Comedie Francaise in the person of Mms. Celine Montaland. She was carried off by an attack of measies caught while nursing her little daughter, and which assumed a fatal form in consequence of her own imprudence in exposing herself to the cold when the erupquite 48, and she had been on the stage nearly all her life. She made her debut at the age of 6 in Augler's charming play of "Gabrielle," when it was first produced at the Theatre Francais. So she used laughingly to contest with Got his claim of being the doyen of the company, declariing that she had been a member of it long before he was.

It must be confessed that her loss leaves no perceptible void in the ranks of the performers at the Comedie Francaise. She was an agreeable actress and she was nothing more. In her best days she never could have been styled a great artiste, even by her warmest admirers. She owed most of her professional success to her sunny genialher professional success to her sunny geniality of temperament joined to her extraordinary beauty. She was, in her prime, the most beautiful actress on the Paristan stage. At the age of 21, when she formed one of the leading attractions at the Theatre du Gymnase she was simply dearling. nase, she was simply dazzling. She was a brilliant brunette, exquisite in feature and superb in coloring, with a dainty figure. whose contours recalled the delicious whose contours recalled the delicious roundness of a perfectly ripened fruit. A few years later James Fisk, desiring to engage some very pretty French actresses to appear in opera bouffe at the Grand Opera-house in New York, sent to Paris for the photographs of the fairest of all the fair ladies who then adorned the Parisian boards. Celline Montaland was the first to be selected, though even then her increasing selected, though even then her increasing embonpoint threatened the marring of her emonpoint threatened the marring of her charms. She appeared in New York in the principal roles of the repertoire of operette in those days, such as the "Grand Duchess," "La Belle Helene," "Genevieve de Brabant, etc." But in spite of her good looks she failed to please the American public. The truth is that the characters she impersonated had been originally given in the United States by one of the most talented of all the original prime donne of opera bouffe, namely Madame Tostee, who never bouffe, namely Madame Tostee, who never had a superior in her peculiar line except, perhaps, Schneider herself. However Madame Montaland was a great success with the King of Erie himself, and her piquant countenance and sparkling dark eyes used frequently to be seen beaming beside him in his open carriage when he took his drives abroad either in the Central Park or at Dong Branch Astory was when he took his drives abroad either in the Central Park or at Dong Branch. A story was told about the first drive that he took the charming actress around New York to give her a view of the public buildings. First he conveyed her to the Grand Opera-house, and was careful to inform her that that was his property. He next showed her the Fifth Av-enue Hotel, which he also claimed as belong-ing to him. And so on with each one of the chief edifices of the city, which he declared were all his. Finally they came to the City Hall. "And whose house is dat?" sked the pretty Parisienne. Fisk made a tremendous effort and exclaimed, "Celine, I cannot tell you a lie; that house is not mine. It belongs to my partner, Jay Gould."

HER RETURN FROM AMERICA.
After Mme. Montaland returned from her American tour, possibly a wiser but not one whit a sadder woman, she tried all sorts and styles of theatrical performances. She sang and danced in operettas. She appeared in a review at the Nouveantes, and created a sensation by appearing in a dress the like of which had never before been seen on the Parisian stage, where wonderful tollettes are as plentiful and as pretty as the flowers in May. It was composed of crimson satin. On the left side of the skirt was embroidered by hand in colored silks a peacock the size of life. The head of the royal bird red just below the lady's waist, and the covered almost entirely the sweeping train. She sang a Spanish song and danced a Spanish pas seul in another piece, and then it was announced that Celine Montaland was about to be received at the Comedie Fran-

Nobody was especially amazed at this astounding piece of news. With influence one can get anywhere or do anything in Paris as well as in other places. In fact the Theatre Francais has of late years become a sort of 'old woman's retreat.'' where the ci-devant cold woman's retreat, where the stage beauties of the French stage are comfortably housed through the philanthropical efforts of their former lovers.

Mme. Montaland, fat, elderly and faded, never a great actress and no longer even a pretty woman, had no more right to be en-rolled amongst the comedians of the State than has Mme. Subra, the leading danseuse of the Grand Opera. She got there all the same, and was rather a white elephant on the hands of the managers. Her best role was that of the Countess in the "Ladles" Battle." But Battle." But in that, as in other plays in which she personated a high-bred lady, her want of distinction told heavily against her. She did not look like a great lady, but like the plump, smiling, good-natured wife of a petty Paris-ian shopkeeper.

Celine Montaland was by no means the sweet sunny creature in private life that she seemed to be in public. She was a very immoral woman, changing her lovers as she moral woman, changing her lovers as she changed her theatrical engagements, and al-ways with a keen lookout for the main chance. She threatened the father of ther eldest son with some sort of scandal or exposure, but the matter was hushed up so quickly that none of the details ever transpired. She never was married. Three of her children—two was married. Three of her indicate wo grown sons and a little daughter 6 years of age—survive her. Her death has created far more of a sensation than her personal qualities justify. She was neither a genius nor a good woman. She was professionally nothing more than a pleasant comic actress. good woman. She was professionally nothing more than a pleasant comic actress. Her one distinguishing attraction—her marvelous beauty—had almost wholly departed. But she filled a wide space in the ranks of the demi-monde. At one time she held command for a brief space over the fickle but easily captured heart of Napoleon III. And, by a curious coincidence, while the funeral services were being held over the deceased actress in the Church of St. Roch, the mass celebrated in commemoration of the anniversary of the death of her imperial lover was taking place at the Church of St. Augustin.

Taking of churches, the most extraordinary suicide of later years took place a few evenings ago in the Church of St. Michel at Havre. While the service of 60'clock in the evening was going on a man presented himself amongst the congregation, gotten up in so strange a way that all his neighbors looked up from their prayer-books to stare at him. His clothes were literally dripping in the oil in which they had been soaked. Around his body was twisted a rope strung closely with pockets of matches and of kindling wook. He carried under one arm a large, shallow brass dish and under the other a ing more than a pleasant comic actress. Her one distinguishing attraction—her mar-

PARIS, Feb. 16.—I purpose devoting a few paragraphs to the latest loss sustained by the Comedie Francaise in the person of Mms.
Celine Montaland. She was carried off by an attack of measles caught while neursing her to Gen. Grant, and that it was brought on by the same cause, namely, excessive smoking He led for a long time a very eccentric lif-literally turning night into day, for he woul lie in bed till 6 o'clock in the afternoon, woul then get up, dress and dine, and would smok His widow is going to take up her permanent abode in Parls, at least till her two sons have completed their education. It was the brother of Prince Nicholas, the Prince Eusene, who rented the beautiful and splendidly furnished hotel of the Countess Telfener (Mrs. John W. Mackayi, eleta). Mackay's sister), for a year, and utterly ruined the elegant and costly furniture by giving his pet dogs and those of his wife, numbering eleven in all, the run of the house. The condition of the fine au pusson and oriental carpets, and of the curtains in embroidered satin and brocade, can better be imagined than described. imagined than described.

What an odd thing Fashion is and how peculiar are her changes and her whims! Having had the opportunity of beholding lately several exquisite sets of lingeric intended for the trousseaux of American brides, I was truck by the total discoverage of the the trousseaux of American brides, I was struck by the total disappearance of the white muslin petticoat. Not a single one of the once universally worn white skirts was included in any one or the outits. It is years since any Parisian lady has worn a white skirt with a walking costume. That piece of folly is reserved for my countrywomen, for Americans always cling desperately to any teaching that is a more avensive and imfoily is reserved for my countrywomen, for Americans always cling desperately to any fashion that is at once expensive and impractical. But it still held its sway, beruffled and lace trimmed, as an adjunct to indoor dress. Now it has disappeared entirely. A short narrow petticoat in white satin, trimmed with a single deep flounce in handsome white imitation lace, or in embroidered white silk gauze, is adopted with evening dresses, unless the fair wearer prefers one in surah of the same hue as her ball dress. But the white satin skirt is the newest and is the most popular. For demi-toilette there is the usual line of taffetas, or satin, or surah skirts in all manner of hues, black being preferred to wear with walking dresses. The newest style that I have seen was one in heavy corded silk in narrow stripes of dark red and cream white, edged with a narrow bordering in ruffles of black lace, and opening up each breadth a quarter of a yard to admit of the escape of similar ruffles. Expensive as this custom of wearing silk and satin pretitionis may seen similar ruffles. Expensive as this custom of wearing silk and satin petticoats may seem, it is in reality an economical one. In the first place, the fair wearer needs far fewer silk skirts than she did muslin ones. In the second place, an elaborate white skirt was a costiy article to have washed and starched and ironed in a duly scientific manner.

NO MORE POWDER.

Another peculiar freak of fashion is the doing away with the use of pearl powder. Time was when every fashionable Parisienne never thought of appearing in public without spreading a goodly layer of powder over her planent features with a special day applied. spreading a goodly layer of powder over her piquant features with a special dab applied to her pretty nose. Now she piques herself (and therein she is sensible) upon her entire lack of make up. The rage for skating, which has characterized the present cold winter, has had much to do with the change, for the fair skateresses (if I may be allowed to coin a word for the occasion) re-joiced in the new fresh bloom called forth by this novel exercise, and did not care to hide it. And if they did the powder would not stay on under their Jane Hading veils, while the on under their Jane Hading veils, while the wintry wind was kissing their cheeks and nipping their noses so severely.

But the severity of the present winter in France, and indeed in Spain and Italy as well, has gotten past a joke. It endured for full two months with about three days in that time on which the temperature was below the freezing point. At Marseilles, for in-stance, warm, bright, sunny Marseilles, all the canals and rivers are frozen hard and fast, and the streets were heaped with snow. From Perigard comes the tidings that the crop of truffles is a total loss, a catastrophe that means ruin for many of the inhabitants; in other places the snow has accumulated to the depth of over a yard. People are frozen to death in the country whilst trying to death in the country whilst trying to make their way from one point to another. An old lady was found dead from the cold in a railway carriage the other day. One-third of the animals in the Jardin des Plantes have perished from the rigor of the weather. But the oddest effect of the cold season has been cound in the fact that the number of marriages in Paris has largely increased during he past month, and one serious Parisian lewspaper grossly asserts that this result has riages in Paris has largely increased during the past month, and one serious Parisian newspaper grossly asserts that this result has been brought about because it is so uncomfortable to sleep alone! BERNHARDT'S DRESSES.

Sarah Bernhardt, according to her usual custom, has taken with her to America on her present trip a number of elegant tollettes wherewith to dazzle the eyes of female Yankeedom. Two of these are for "La Dame aux Camellias." The first is the house dress aux Camelias." The first is the house dress for the third act and is charmingly and deliciously tasteful. It is in silver-gray crepe de chine, made with a blouse waist and profusely trimmed with Venetian gulpure, the sleeves being entirely covered with that lace. A Henri II. pelerine in same material, made short and pointed, accompanied this dress. For the fourth act of the same drama a superb evening dress has been prepared. It is in gold-yellow satin covered with a large meshed tulle in the same color, embroidered meshed tulle in the same color, embroidered by hand with groups of snowballs and buttercups. The satin train, starting from the waist, is embroidered with clusters of the same flewers, and is bordered with a band of yellow ostrich plumes. A boa of the same feathers will be worn with this dress. The toilette for the first act of "Fedora" is in the princesse shape, and is in black satin entirely covered with black tulle, embroidered with jet and with black floss silk. The train is in black satin and bordered with intermingled black and azure ostrich feathers. The dress is farther hoss sik. The train is in black sain and bordered with intermingled black and agure ostrich feathers. The dress is farther adorned with a girdle made of black satin ribbons crossed very low over the front. A large bown of a ribbirznae tson, set on the right shoulder, is finished with long ends, to one of which the fan is to be attached. On her first entrance Sarah will appear on a long evening wrap in sky-blue plush, made with a pelerine in stamped velvet of the same color and having a pointed yoke in gold passementerje studded with pearls. Another charming wrap is in white satin, lined throughout with ermine. With the first named is to be worn a high Russian collar with a boa in black fur, and with the second a boa in plain white far, tipped at either end with two of the black tails of the ermine. Lucy H. "COMANCHE'S" ESCAPE.

STORY OF THE ONLY SURVIVOR OF THE LITTLE BIG HORN MASSACRE.

ow Capt. Miles Keogh's Horse Made His Way Through the Indians Who Slaugh-tered Custer and His Troops—The Ani-mal Idolised by the Seventh Cavair y.

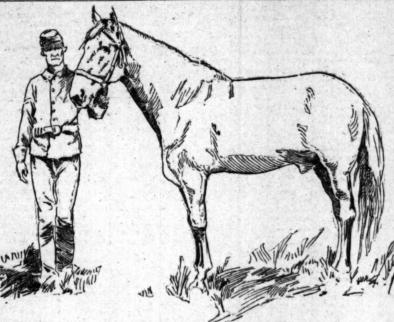

While the Seventh Cavalry Regiment was in the city last week to act as an escort in the funeral of the late Gen. Sherman the members of that famous body of fighters were frequently asked how the pet and idol of the regiment, the horse "Comanche," was faring. "Comanche" is the only living relic of the Custer massacre and it was thought the seventh Regiment boys would bring the old horse to this city on the occasion of the care he is getting stiff in the joints, a depression appears over the eye, and there are other signs of an approaching end. "Comanche," thanks to his keepers of the past afteen years, is still in excellent condition for a horse of his age, for he was not a colt when he made a breach in a wall of Sioux Indians. Exactly how old "Comanche" is, none of the Seventh Regiment boys are able to say positively, but are quite certain he was between and 10 years of age when he carried Capt. Keogh to his death in 1876. This would make his age now between 28 and 28 years, fifteen of which have been free from toll. What would happen to the individual who dared to mount or injure "Comanche," the soldiers do not say, but it is quite certain the punishment would be something the offender would remember.

COMANCHE'S MASTER.

Comanche's master had a very remarkable history. He, together with John J. Coppinger and James O'Keefe were soldiers and chums in the English army. They became commissioned officers and privileged characters, but tiring of their routine as British coldiers they stored the Papal Zonaves of the Seventh Regiment boys would bring the old horse to this city on the occasion of the Sherman funeral, but those who hoped to rest their eyes on that venerated animal were disappointed. "He is too old. He does not want to travel," were the answers the soldiers made when asked why the horse did not accompany them. They feared the journey would make him ill, and they would rather an entire troop should suffer than have "Comanche" feel one tinge of pain or undergo one moment's hard-living being who escaped from that terrible slaughter. How the little horse broke through the circular wall of savages who surrounded Custer and his brave band will surrounded Custer and his brave band will never be known positively, but the nearest to the true story is told by the Indians who took part in the fight. Custer, at the head of about 600 men, arrived on the banks of the Little Big Horn River on the morning of June 25, 1876, and saw spread before him in the valley a camp of 9,000 Indians, including squaws and children, all under the leadership of Sitting Bull. The camp of Indians was about three miles long. Gen. Custer's tactics in fighting Indians was to attack both flanks and the middle, and thus rout and disconcert them. He decided to carry out the same idea here. He ordered carry out the same idea here. He ordered Maj. Reno to attack the east end of the camp with one division, Capt. Benteen the center with another division, while he would attack the west end. The attacks were to be made simultaneously, but Maj. Reno reached his through several hot battles and could stand fire like a soldier, and run like a wild mustang. Gen. Custer, with his division, made the attack on the west end, just as Capt. Benteen attacked the center. Maj. Reno having withdrawn, the Indians massed to meet these two divisions, but at the first charge the battle seemed to have been won by the soldiers. Gradually the terrific fire of several thousand Indians armed with the latest improved guns told on the ranks of the soldiers and Capt. Benteen's companies were mown

Capt. Benteen's companies were mown down. Centering on Custer's division the Indians drove him across the river and up the gradual rise. The men were still mounted and retreated in excellent order. All this while Custer watched for Maj. Beno to attack the rear, but he came not.

Leaving Capt. Keogh on a lower ridge Gen. Custer ascended the next with his men and there made his last stand. Capt. Keogh seeing his men exposed to the terrible rain of builets gave the order to kill the horses and take refuge behind their bodies. The order was obeyed at once. He was still riding "Comanche." At this point the stories of the effect that Capt. Keogh, overcome for the moment at the thought of ending the life of the beast who had served him so well, dismounted, and giving the animal a stinging blow on the haunches with the broad side of his sword, drove him away and turned his unprotected front to the bullets. "Comanche," it is said, plunged over the steppe, regardless of everything before him, and the Indians being on foot made way for the wild charger rather than meet death under his feet. The circle around Custer and Keogh was complete, and a few brief minutes after the departure of "Comanche" every soldier in Custer's division was dead. Two days later Capt. Chas. King, who had received word of the massacre from Maj. Reno's scouts, and was marching in haste to the scene, discovered "Comanche" dragging his wear; limbs over the plains on the trail over which he had come but two days before, bearing one of the bravest soldiers that ever Leaving Capt. While the service of 6 o'clock in the evening was going on a man presented himself amongst the congregation, gotten up in so strange a way that all his neighbors looked up from their prayer-books to stare at him. His clothes were literally dripping in the oil in which they had been soaked. Around his body was twisted a rope strung closely with pockets of matches and of kindling wook. He carried under one arm a large, shallow brass dish and under the other a big bottle. Proceeding up the aisle as far as the strong of worshipers would permit, he first set down the brass dish, into which he poured to be petroleum. Then he stepped into the dish, struck a match which he produced from some nook in his garments, and deliberately set fire to the petroleum. In an instant the wretched being was transformed into a column of fames. The officiating priest abandoned his prayers for a fire many transformed fato a column of fames.

His presence among the soldiers of the Seventh Cavalry at Fort Riley, Kan., is a constant reminder of the severest blow this regiment has ever received and for the past fifteen years has stirred them, no doubt, to more than ordinary bravery in the field when fighting the Indians. The name of the Seventh Cavalry has always been one of terror to the Indians, for it was Custer's of the Twenty-third Infantry, and is stadoubt, to more than ordinary bravery in the field when fighting the Indians. STATEMENT FROM MRS. PREMONT. How She Balked an Attempt to Delay Ger

The following is from the March Centery and is of particular interest to old St. Louisans:

"In the month of March, 1848, I accompanied Mr. Fremont to St. Louis, where the second expedition was fitted out; that through, he left for the frontier, where the men and animals were gathered. Following out my duty of Secretary I was to open the mail and forward to the camp at Kaw Landing, now Kansas City, all that in my judgment required Mr. Fremont's attention. One day there came for him an official letter from his colonel, the chief of the Topographical Bureau; it was an order recalling him to Washington, whither he was directed to return and explain why he had armed his party with a howitzer, saying that it was a scientific, not a military expedition, and should not have been so armed. I saw at once that this would make Jefays which would involve the overthrow of great plans, and I felt there was a hidden hand at work. Fortunately my father was absent from St. Louis, and I could act on my instinct. Without telling any one of the order, I put it away and hurried off a messenger fo Mr. Fremont one of his men, Basil Lajeunesse, who was to join him with the last things. I feared a duplicate letter might have been sent on to the frontier; but the river mail was very irregular and slow, and I charged Basil to make all haste, for much depended on that letter. I wrote Mr. Fremont that he must not ask why, but must start at once, ready or not ready. The animals could rest and fatten at Bent's fort. 'Only go.' There was a reason but he could not know it; my father would take care of everything. And as we acted together unquestioningly he did go immediately in the animals that he must have been sent on insufficient knowledge, and to obey it would break up the expedition; that the journeys to and from Washington, with indefinite delays there, would lose to the animals the best season for grass and throw them, underfed, into the mountains in winter; that the country of the Blackfeet and other fierce tribes had to be crossed, an The following is from the March Century and is of particular interest to old St. Louisans

The usual agreements have been inserted regarding boats following the race. The press boat accommodations will be much improved.

"The agreement is now in the hands of the ew London Board of Trade, which will in nitely from them in a week or two.'

BASE BALL. The National Board, which jumped into un savory 1 otoriety by its very first decision seems in a fair way to sustain its reputation says the New York World. Allen W. Thur man and John I. Rogers entertained a con mittee from the International League yester mittee from the international League yester-day afternoon. They shook hands with C. D., White, Walter W. Burnham and George K. Frazer, admitted them to protection under the national agreement and let them go. The gentlemen from the International League departed apparently satisfied with their mis-parted apparently satisfied with their mis-sion, but they will soon realize that they have been "up against it good and hard." When the American Association bought the franchises of the Syracuse, Rochester and Toledo clubs, Mr. Thurman promised the of those clubs that their players should not be taken away from them and that they should control their franchises in any other league they might choose to enter. This belief was rudely shocked a few weeks ago when a national agreement club jumpe in and signed Tim O'Rourke, who was on the serve list of the Syracuse Club.

International League applied for admission to the national agreement in Class B, and it was given to them. But this does not protect the players "reserved" by the Frazer left for Syracuse at 9 o'clock last night. Before leaving the hotel he told a World reporter that his players were pro-tected. Chairman Thurman an hour before had said that none of the players of the Syra cuse and Rochester clubs were under protec tion except those who had signed contracts from except those who had signed contracts for 1891 or those whose terms had been accepted since Feb. 13. This system of robbery is called base ball diplomacy.

EARLE WAGNER'S VIEWS.

J. Earle Wagner of the Philadelphia Assembly and the part of the Philadelphia Assembly and t sociation Club and William Sharsig, manager of the team, who arrived here yesterday morning, will leave for Cincinnati to-night to attend the American Association meeting to be held there to morrow. Mr. Wagner and Mr. Sharsig have been in consultation to-day with President Von der Ahe and Secretary Munson of the Browns arranging a schedule to report to the Association. The object is to have as few conflicting dates as possible with the National League in Boston and Philadelphia, the only two places at which the two organizations clash. It is the intention of the Association to let the National League. of the Association to let the National League take all the aggressive measures, they merely defending themselves and endeavoring to please the public. Mr. Wagner said that the talk of Al Johnson jumping to the National League instead of alarming the Association, League instead of alarming the Association, as that organization desired it should, only made them laugh. "To anybody who knows Mr. Jonnson as I do," remarked Mr. Wagner, "it is most ridiculous. He is a big, whole-souled fellow, who would never dream of taking advantage of anybody. Johnson's only trouble, as I have often told him, is that he is too honest for the base ball business, for it is full of tricksters, who are willing to take any advantage of anybody to advance their own interests." Mr. Wagner says he has offered Griffin, who played center he has offered Griffin, who played center field for the Philadelphia Players' League team last year, $5,000 to play with the Philadelphia Association Club the coming season. Griffin is under reserve to the Baltimore Association Club, but he will not play there, and the Philadelphia Association team has been empowered to sign him. Griffin is a phenomenal outfielder and a great batsman and base-runner. Mr. Wagner is very enthusiastic over the prospects of the American Association. tion. He is quite a young man and a thor

WANT VON DER AHE ARRESTED.

The Pittsburg management are now threatening to make things interesting for President Von der Ahe for having had Pitcher Mark Baldwin arrested. Here is what the Pittsburg Dispatch says:

There is likely to be lots of fun on account of the arrest of Pitcher Mark Baldwin, and before matters are fixed up it may be that Mr. Von der Ahe will be behind the bars. Yesterday President O'Neill wired from New York to Attorney S. Schoyer of this city, pointing out that the arrest of Baldwin was malicious, and that he, Mr. Schoyer, had to find out who the prosecutor was and have him arrested at once. 'Institute cross suits,' said Mr. O'Neill.

Attorney Schoyer at once wired two wellknown St. Louis lawyers to take the case in hand, that is to defend Baidwin and enter suit against the prosecutor, who is supposed to be Von der Ahe. Yesterday afternoon Baidwin wired Manager Hanlon asking him if ever he had wired Pitcher King asking his terms, or in any way soliciting him to sign with the Pittsbarg Club, Manager Hanlon certainly has not

With Aing or any of von der Ane's players. This explodes the charge of conspiracy, or the charge that Baldwin was in a conspiracy to capture or steal Von der Ahe's players. If, as stated, Von der Ahe is determined to push the case to its limits, the Pittsburg Club is just as determined to make it warm for the St. Louis beer-seller:

FOOT-BALL.

St. Louis won the second game of the football series between the representative elevens of this city and Chicago. It took place at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon and the home team scored two goals, while the Chicago eleven failed to get any. One point was scored by St. Louis during the first half of the game and another point during the second half. This ties the teams, each having won one game. Five were to have been played, but it is doubtful whether they ever take-place, as the visitors were they ever take-place, as the visitors were displeased with some of the decisions yesterday and also much put out over what they term the discourtesy of the St. Louis athletes, who they claim did little to entertain them, the Blue Bells being the only organization to treat them at all well.

WRESTLING.

The wrestling match between Mike Mooney, Athletic Club, and Bert Walker of Cincinnat for the welter-weight Græco-Roman cham plonship, $200 and gate receipts, took plac yesterday afternoon at the Natatorium yesterday afternoon at the Natatorium. Matsada Sorakichi, the Jap, was referee, and the crowd in attendance was a red-hot Mooney gathering. The St. Louis man was allowed the first fall in 8 minutes, Walker securing the second in 3 minutes, and Mooney the third and deciding fall in 7 minutes. It was a questionable fall, and a portion of the crowd were loud in their condemnation of the decision, claiming the Cincinnati man had not been accorded fair play. All through the contest there was wrangling going on, the seconds of both men making frequent claims of fouls.

THE RING.

Bob Fitzsimmons has been very quiet dur-ing the past week, and it is plainly evident ing the past week, and it is plainly evident that he is no great hurry to enter the ring again, writes Macon. He wants to wait, he says, and fight the winner of the Jack Burke-Ted Pritchard go in England. Neither of these men is within three inches of his height, and he greatly outclasses them is reach. He knows that Burke was bested in reach. He knows that Burke was bested in California by Dempsey, and he can get a line of Pritchard, he thinks, by his performance with "The Irish Lad," who, I take it, is a good deal staler than he was when he met Dempsey. Jim Hall is meanwhile having a pempsey. Jim Hall is meanwhile having a good time in California walking around with a chip on his shoulder, which he asserts that Fitz dare not knock off. There are two Australian book-makers in this city at present who are willing to bet $10,000, I am informed by Pat Sheedy, that Hall is Fitz's master. Meanwhile Mickey Dooley will soon be here, and then look out for tun. and then look out for fun.

ATHLETICS.

Arrangements have been completed by which the Polo Grounds become the property of the Manhattan Athletic Club for the term of one year from March 15, with the option for two succeeding years. The name "Polo Grounds," according to the lease drawn, will still remain as the trade mark of the New York National League Club and the presen Brotherhood Park will be hereafter known as the Polo Grounds. The Manhattan Athletic Club will call their ground Manhattan Oval or some equally appropriate name, and for the present year at least will push rapidly to the front in their outdoor departments of base ball, foot-ball, lacrosse, tennis, bicycling and trap-shooting. The Manhattan Athletic Club will lease open dates during the season. The Western Association of Amateur Ath-letes, at a meeing held at the Lindell Hotel yesterday, voted to disband and as separate clubs join the Amateur Athletic Union. The rers' Cricket and Athletic Club and the etic Club composed the Western Association.

THE TURF.

There has already been some mild speculation on the Brooklyn, said a well-known horseman, and when the betting settles down and future books are publicly in the course of a few days, I fancy Raceland will take his place at the head of the quotations. It may be that the popular idol, Tenny, will run the Suburban winners of 1889 pretty close in the betting, butghte man who considers that Mr. Pulsifer's "swayback" can over a mile and a quarter concede Raceland six pounds and a beating is likely to have a rude awakening if Phil Dwyser's new purchase has retained his best Dwyer's new purchase has retained his best form and strips fit and well at Brooklyn. Although Raceland has been left in the Brooklyn, however, I regard his starting for that lyn, however, I regard his starting for that event as extremely problematic. Rowe understood the horse to a nicety while he handled him for Mr. Belmont, and that prince of trainers always held to the belief that the middle of May, the date of the Brooklyn, was altogether too early to expect great things of Raceland. An effort will no doubt be made to prepare the horse for the meeting at Gravesend, but as the day for the decision of the big race draws near I fancy Mr. Dwyer will see the wisdom of holding his trump card in reserve for the Suburrancy Mr. Dwyer will see the wisdom of nod-ing his trump card in reserve for the Subur-ban, notwithstanding the fact that in that race he will have to meet Tenny on two pounds worse terms than they are asked to battle at at Brooklyn. If "Jimmy" Rowe could not get Raceland fit as early as May in previous years I do not think it is at all likely that the Dwyers can manage to do so this

As a larger number of riders will partici-pate in European tours this year than ever before, a few points on the subject by D. Castleman Webb, who has recently returned from the other side, will no doubt prove interesting. Mr. Webb says: "The cyclist should have a light water-proof cape, large enough to go over the handle bars of a safety, so that his knees will not get wet during the frequent rains which occur, instead enough to go over the handle bars of a safety, so that his knees will not get wet during the frequent rains which occur just at that season of the year when touring through England is most enjoyable. Riders, as a rule, carry too much clothing to make wheeling comfortable, and my experience has taught me that one suit which will stand rain and dust is sufficient. Two extra woolen shirts, a water-proof cape, one pair extra stockings, handkerchiefs, comb and clothes brush are all that is needed to properly enjoy a tour through Great Britain. Cyclists would do well to post themselves as to the weather before starting and to seek pretty scenery rather than good roads. If he wants to go to Europe mainly to ride, he had better remain in St. Louis. He should seek the mountainous country, as there is neither scenery nor any pleasure in riding through the low parts of England. All the hills and mountains are rideable, and in the steepest places the roads wind so that the same road runs almost parallel to itself and you cannot tell whether the one in the distance is going towards or away from you. It is hard to say which is the most beautiful country, England, Scotland or Wales. Each has its peculiar beautiful scenery. I found a great many English riders who were spending their holidays among the beautiful mountains and passes of North Wales, which to my mind is a paradise on earth. I strongly advise cyclists to ride in parties of not more than two. If you go in a large party you they are good enough, and it is the weather or more strictly speaking the rain, which they must guard against. The wheelman must be careful to have a machine in which the bearings are well protected from rain and mud, and must also select a suit which will look respectable under all conditions, and right here I wish to state that I found the C. T. C. uniform to be all that could be asked. By wearing the garments you will also receive many courtestes from members of that organization which you would otherwise miss, and I shall never forget the kindness and attention which I received from the librarians of Christ College at Oxford, which began with the sight of my C. T. C. trousers. The first thing the intending European tourists should do is to join the Cyclists' Touring Club, and procure their hand and road books which serve as an efficient guide to all parts of the Kingdom. Small cities like Oxford, Chester, Streford-on-Avon and Leamington are very interesting, but I advise tourists to keep away from the larger cities such as Sheffield, Manchester, Liverpool and Birmingham, as the roads approaching all the large towns are generally bad and the cities unsightly and uninteresting. Provided you are a member of the C. T. C. your handbook will show you all the places of interest, together with the distances, conditions of the roads and the names of local consuls, who will gladly lend you all needed assistance. The membership card entitles you to a rate of 37 cents for lodging, with a good breakfast for the same price at all the hotels with which the C. T. C. has contracts, and the accommodations in spite of the low price are uniformly first-class.

Founder of the "Tribune." New York, March 9 .- The Hon. Amos J and interesting lecture at the Broadway The ater last night on Horace Greeley for the ber efit of the Press Club building fund. He be gan by saying that eighteen summers had warmed the soil of freedom since Horace Greeley was laid away to rest in Greenwood.

de spoke of Greeley's unique personality. His white coat and slouch hat were as familiar in America as the little green coat and cocked hat of Napoleon were in France. He was de scended from three generations of farmers and blacksmiths. His mental in farmers and blacksmiths. His mental in-heritance came from his mother. She was an omniverous reader, could repeat many tales and poems and Greeley derived his love of books from her. He went to school when only 2 years and 9 months old. At the age of 4 he stood at the head of the spell age of 4 he stood at the head of the spelling class. When they had spelling contests little Greeley chose his side from sentiments of friendship, and not on the merits of the children. His feeling as a child overruled his judgment. His career as a boy prefigured his career as a man. His sympathic always ruled him. There was not a bool within three-quarters of a mile of his father's house which he did not borrow, read and return. Like Lincold, then a boy a thousand miles away, he filled thefire with pine knots and read by their light, dead to the world. The first poem he ever read was Mrs. Hemans' "Casabianca," and she was always a favorite poet of his. He went to school liferathy whom the state of the second sta to school altogether about forty-five months At 13 he knew more than the teacher and and Greeley's youth was one of toll, which was of advantage to him since it gave him a capital of good health. Mr. Cummings drew an interesting picture of Mr. Graden drew an interesting picture of Mr. Greeley as an awkward, white-haired boy, with a whining voice, applying for work to Editor Bliss o Putney, Vt.

He once smoked a cigar; it made him so sick that he never smoked again. He once drank some whisky, and it made him so sick that he never drank again. He learned to swear, and to the day of his death he kept i up in a way which was more refreshing thar appalling. While they were boys in Vermoni Mr. George Jones, the editor of the Times and Horace Greeley ran off and went fishing and Horace Greeley ran off and went fishing on Sunday. Mr. Jones got whipped in the woodshed on his return home, but Horace Greeley got off free. Mr. Cummings gave a realistic and humorous account of Greeley's wanderings as a tramp printer. Greeley landed at the Battery fifty-nine years ago with $10 in his pocket. The city was then about one-third as big as $t. Louis is now. It Through the kindness of some Irish people he got a job in a printing office. When the owner of the office first saw him he said to

Greeley was discharged. He wore no socks and his wristbands were tied with strings. One day he came to work in a suit of rusty broadcioth and a swallow-tailed coat. He

He had bought a second-hand suit for $5.
The boys asked him to "wet" the suit, and he took them all to the saloon and treated them. Despite his long anti-slavery fight, Greeley had a personal antipathy to the negro. He once said to a negro delegate from Virginia: "Oh —, dig potatoes and ameliorate your own condition."

Charged With Stealing Firearms. A warrant for petit larceny was issued at the Four Courts this morning against Harry Wilson. The defendant, a young negro, is charged with stealing a shotgun and a rifle charged with steaming a shotgan and a rine from M. Pollock, 1806 Lay avenue. Wilson, it seems, has been in Mr. Pollock's employ several weeks in the capacity of a driver. On last Friday he stole from the residence the two guns, pawning the weapons at Eighth and Morgan streets. He was arrested by Sergt. King of the Third District.

Palmer, who was until recently Professor of Chemistry in the Rolla School of Mines. Clark came here some six months ago from Springfield, Mo, with his handsome young wife to take a course of study at the school of mines. As the story goes Clark and the professor became fast friends and it was not long before Palmer became acquainted with Mrs. Clark. An intimacy sprang up between them so Clark charges, and this developed in a scene one evening at the Grant House. Palmer then left the city and Mrs. Clark returned to her relatives in Springfield. Some interesting developments are promised when the case comes to trial.
